RUNNER ADMITS FALSE STORY OF $5,215 HOLDUP

Money Is Recovered and Three Alleged Aids Are Seized.

EXAMINATION MADE BY EYE SPECIALIST

Man Confessed He Gave Bag to Confederates While on Way to Capital.

A $15-a-month bank messenger confessed last night to headquarters detectives that he had turned over $5,125 to confederates and then falsely reported he had been robbed while walking near Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest.

The messenger, Ellsworth Williams, 42, colored, of Seat Pleasant, Md., told police he was robbed of the money bag while on his way to the Commercial National Bank from the Southern Maryland Trust Co., of Seat Pleasant.

After his confession, the police recovered all the money in a shed of his three alleged accomplices in Seat Pleasant, and arrested the following as his conspirators: James Butler, 30; Rodney R. Rice, 27; Rice's brother, Chauncey R., 37, all colored and living in Seat Pleasant.

Says He Gave Men Money.

Williams admitted under grilling he had given the money to the men after he had left the Seat Pleasant Bank, and then rode into the District on a street car and falsified the report of the robbery. He had claimed he was temporarily blinded by some substance being thrown into his eyes.

The collapse of Williams' story came when Chief of Detectives Frank B. W. Burke, disbelieving his story, ordered him taken to an eye specialist at the Naval offiqital. Williams had continually rubbed his eyes, and claimed that the robbers had thrown some foreign substance into them.

Names Four Others.

The specialist, after an exhaustive examination, failed to uncover any foreign particles in Williams' eyes. Confronted with this and the rapid breakdown of other parts of his holdup story by Detective Sergts. James Kenney, James Tolson and Elmer F. Lewis, the messenger broke down and confessed. He named his alleged accomplices.

Headquarters police immediately communicated with Prince Georges County officials. Constable Earl Blackwell and other officers went to the homes of his alleged conspirators at Wilson and Addison Chapel roads and there recovered the money and arrested the three men.

After his report of the robbery, the messenger was unable to say whether he had dropped the bag when the burning substance was thrown into his eyes or whether it was snatched from his hand by the supposed "robbers."

Gave Description to Police.

He gave Detective Sergts. Tolson and Kenney a description of the man who, he said, rode on the street car with him from the District line to Fifteenth street and New York avenue, where Williams alighted, carrying the money bag.

Asked what he did when the money bag was missed, Williams replied: "I came to the bank" (the Commercial National Bank, at Fourteenth and G streets).

"How long did it take your eyes to stop burning?"

"About five minutes."

"How many men were there?"

"I don't know."

"Did they throw the stuff into your

Natal, Brazil, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Jean Mermoz, French airman, brought down his plane Arc-en-Ciel (Rainbow) here today after a record flight of 14 hours and 2 minutes across the south Atlantic from Africa.

He and his six companions in the trimotored ship became the first fliers to have breakfast in Africa and dinner in Brazil.

They averaged about 140 miles an hour for the 1,982-mile flight. Mermoz, fresh and smiling, compared the passage with his 1930 westward flight, which took 21 hours, declaring today's

APARTMENT DEATH INQUEST SET TODAY

Leedy Claims Girl Suicide; Tells of Several Callers Before Shooting.

A coroner's jury today will decide whether Emily Toombs, 23, of 4822 Piney Branch road, was murdered or took her own life.

The girl was found dead from a bullet wound in her head early yesterday morning in the apartment of Boife M. Leedy, 26, at 84 M street northwest.

Leedy, who told police that the girl went into another room and apparently shot herself with his .25-caliber pistol, was held for the inquest.

Inspector P. S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, said that Theodore W. Patterson, of 1805 California street, a former policeman, and Wilma G. Borus, of 1121 New Hampshire avenue, who were at the apartment before the shooting, have been summoned to appear at the inquest.

Leedy told police that Miss Toombs, who he first met in a drug store, had been at his apartment since 6 o'clock Sunday night. They had drunk a few highballs and some beer, he said.

Another couple dropped in and left, he said. When they had gone, Leedy told detectives, "Emily got up and said she was going to the bedroom.

"All of a sudden I heard a shot. I jumped up and saw her standing in the dressing room. The way she was standing I could not see the gun in her hand.

"I yelled something at her and she

Pope States King Broke Agreement

Protests Use of Orthodox Ritual in Christening of Princess.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—Pope Pius XI tonight officially protested to Foreign Minister Nicholas Mouchanoff against use of the Greek Orthodox Church ritual in the christening ceremonies of the infant Princess Maria Louise, daughter of King Boris III and Queen Giovanna, born last Friday.

The protest, conveyed through the papal nuncio, Mgr. Ange Joseph Roncalli, claimed the king had been guilty of a breach in his solemn agreement under which the Pope in 1930 granted special dispensation for his marriage to the queen, formerly an Italian princess and a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

It was understood that Foreign Minister Mouchanoff replied to the Pope, saying that his government takes full responsibility for the act.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Fire believed to have started from crossed wires in the pipe organ swept through the chancel of the Dormont Presbyterian Church late today.

Firemen battled the flame more than an hour, hampered by smoke which filled the stone edifice and poured in dense clouds through windows and doors. The damage was estimated at $15,000.

SLAIN PRISONER CALLED LINK IN LINDBERGH CASE

California Convict Says Felon Admitted Part in Kidnaping Gang.

PRINTS RUSHED HERE; HIS NAME WITHHELD

Told of Ring That Collected $50,000; Jafsie May View 5 New York Suspects.

San Quentin, Calif., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—A convict's story that Raymond Boyd, a fellow prisoner who was stabbed to death in San Quentin last Saturday, had told of being a member of a New York kidnaping ring which collected $50,000, caused prison authorities today to send Boyd's photograph and fingerprints to New York and Washington, respectively.

Warden James B. Holohan, who refused to reveal the name of the informant on the ground that secrecy was needed to protect him from possibly the same fate that befell Boyd, said the picture and fingerprints were sent eastward to assist investigators in "the Lindbergh case or any others in which the information might possibly be useful."

Fifty Witnessed Killing.

Holohan expressed the belief Boyd was an assumed name. Boyd, 24, was received here less than three weeks ago from Santa Barbara, where he was sentenced on a burglary charge. Prison officials said a convict who was brought to San Quentin with Boyd told the story of the alleged kidnaping ring.

Boyd was stabbed to death in the prison library. There were fifty or more prisoners in the room, but all, possibly fearing that to tell anything might mean death in the same manner, disclaimed having seen the killing or the killer.

Alleges Double Cross.

Refusing to name his assailant, Boyd died after saying:

"I know who did it and I'll take care of t in my own way."

Holohan said the unnamed convict said Boyd told him the kidnaping gang consisted of eight members; that the $50,000 was divided among six of them and the other two members were "double crossed," and that one of the latter two now is a prisoner in San Quentin. Holohan said his informant mentioned no name except Boyd's.

Jafsie May View Five.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Examination of the activities of two policemen and three others accused in a kidnaping, gave rise today to a report that Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh case, would view the men to determine if any of them were members of the gang to which he paid money for Col. Lindbergh.

District Attorney William F. Geoghan, of Brooklyn, revealed that he was examining police rolls back as far as February 1 to determine when the two policemen had been absent from duty. The Lindbergh baby was kidnaped in March. "I have my own reason," Geoghan said.

The two policemen, John Nevins and Arthur Graef, are accused with three alleged accomplices of kidnaping Ernest Schoening by faking an arrest as he left Brooklyn Federal Court last December. Schoening was held for ransom by his abductors, but released before any was paid.

Dabler, suspended for intoxication, had the mail with him they said when they cornered him last night in the vestibule of an apartment building where a woman friend resided. She with her roommate, was held for questioning.

KILLER SUSPECT ILL IN POISON MYSTERY

Near Death in Britain After Friend Is Found Slain in Cunning Murder.

London, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Samuel Furnace was close to death in St. Pancras Hospital from mysteriously acquired poison tonight, 24 hours after his arrest on a charge of committing one of the most diabolically cunning murders in British criminal history.

Within 20 yards of his sick room was the grim mortuary where for days lay the bullet-pierced and charred body of his friend, Walter Spatchett, who allegedly was the victim of an all but "perfect murder."

Furnace was visited by his charming wife, who has acclaimed him the perfect husband and father and has maintained his innocence throughout eleven hectic days in which the police conducted the greatest man hunt England has known since the Crippen case.

A brother was also admitted into the sick room, in which sat three men from Scotland Yard silently listening in the hope that they might hear a word of confession.

Furnace had been unconscious, but through the administration of oxygen he recovered sufficiently to recognize his loved ones and to smile at them. Meanwhile his 10-year-old son waited in an anteroom for word from his father.

Yesterday Furnace was run to earth at a South End boarding house and

MILLS DEMANDS SALES TAX AND RAPS CONGRESS

Pay-as-You-Go Policy Is Urged in Plea for Economy.

U. S. DEFICIT CALLED RECOVERY OBSTACLE

Upkeep of New Buildings Far Exceeds Former Rentals, Radio Speaker Says.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

In a new appeal for a general manufacturers' excise tax and for effective congressional action to balance the Federal budget, Secretary of the Treasury Mills said last night, in a Nation-wide radio broadcast, that both new revenues and drastic reductions in expenditures are essential to restoration of the pay-as-you-go policy in government. To this policy, he added, the whole Nation "must look for the initial impulse toward economic recovery."

He alluded to the continued bleeding of the capital markets for deficit balances as a primary obstacle to the resumption of normal commercial financing and said that further delay on an honestly balanced budget might add many millions unnecessarily to our future debt costs by jeopardizing the Treasury's prospective conversion program next year.

"Tricky Bookkeeping Device."

The suggestion put forward by several influential Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill recently that public works expenditures be taken out of the budget and financed through long-term bonds was described by Secretary Mills—without any mention of names—as a "tricky bookkeeping device" which evades rather than faces the difficult fiscal problem confronting the Government.

Simultaneously with Mr. Mills' address, there were indications at the White House that President Hoover is preparing a special message to Congress, for delivery today perhaps, on the general subject of taxation and the budget. Fiscal affairs have been discussed in several recent conferences between President Hoover and his advisers and the impression prevails that a critical situation is developing concerning which Congress should be informed.

The theory that public buildings are self-liquidating and should therefore be handled by long-time amortization breaks down completely, Mr. Mills said, when operating costs for new buildings are compared with previous rentals.

$475,000 Saved Annually.

Public buildings completed up to January 1 under the general program saved $475,000, a year in rentals, but the running expenses of the new structures amount to $1,130,000 a year.

He cited the case of a postoffice

LONG AGREES TO HALT FILIBUSTER IN DEBATE ON PHILIPPINES TODAY

Offer to Neutralize Philippines Is Denied

U. S. Has Made No Such Overture to Japan, as Reported in Japanese Newspaper, Stimson Declares.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Stimson, who is giving long hours of attention to developments in the Far East, denied flatly yesterday that the State Department was connected with unofficial overtures reported to have been made to Japan for neutralizing the Philippine Islands.

The report was published by the Japanese newspaper, Nichi Nichi, said a report to the department from Ambassador Grew in Tokyo, and said the plan to include the Philippines as well as Japanese mandated islands in the Pacific was proposed in unofficial quarters.

The newspaper added that a Japanese office spokesman had replied to the approaches that Japan probably would approve the plan in principle, but believed action at this time would be inopportune.

Secretary Stimson told newspapermen at a press conference that the department knew nothing of the reports.

It was the first time he had discussed the Manchurian situation directly since the new outbreak of fighting between China and Japan in the Jehol section.

But while Washington officialdom is having little to say on the question, it is not overlooking a single event that transpires in harassed Manchuria.

Gen. Frank R. McCoy, who was the American representative on the Lytton commission which the League of Nations sent to Manchuria to make a report, has been in conference with the Secretary of State several times recently.

Senator Relents On Threat of Cloture.

VICTORY SEEN BY ADVOCATES

Robinson Fails to Get Consent to Rapid Action on Bill.

(Associated Press.)

The rigid shackles of Senator Long's filibuster were loosened last night to permit an early vote on passing the Philippines independence bill over President Hoover's veto and the Senate recessed with an agreement for limited debate.

With advocates of the measure predicting victory by a few votes, it was agreed that the Senate would meet an hour earlier than usual today and that each senator would be restricted to a half hour of talking after Senator Cutting, of New Mexico, completes a speech already begun.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, proposed the agreement when it seemed certain that the Senate, intent upon reaching a vote, was heading into its first real night meeting since the session began.

Will Resume Filibuster.

Senator Long, who favors the freedom measure, announced emphatically that although he was relaxing his filibuster against the Glass banking reform bill to allow a vote on the Philippines measure, his opposition to the former was undiminished. The filibuster, already five days old, will be resumed, he said, after the Senate has voted on the island issue.

A threat to invoke cloture to limit debate on the Philippine question, made by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, apparently moved the Louisiana senator to relent in his speaking marathon.

Senator Long spoke more than three hours yesterday urging the Senate to override President Hoover's veto, but he made it plain he was not seeking to delay on that issue.

Merely to Delay Glass Bill.

"I am merely using it to delay the Glass bill that much more," he said off the floor.

Robinson tried late in the day to get a unanimous-consent agreement to vote on the Philippine question shortly after convening today, but it was announced that Senators Cutting, New Mexico; Norris, Nebraska, and Borah, Idaho, all Republicans, wanted to speak and more time would be required.

Robinson sat down when Cutting and Norris suggested that the debate continue until a vote was reached last night.

"We have the votes to override this veto now," Robinson asserted. "We have had them ever since the veto arrived."

Administration supporters echoed this statement, although some senators disputed this. A two-thirds vote is necessary to pass the measure over the veto. Senate action would enact the measure, as the House last week passed it over the veto.

Could Reject Bill.

However, the Philippine Legislature could start the controversy all over again by rejecting the bill and word from Manila yesterday was that pros-

YOUNG RITCHIE FREE IN DEATH OF OLIVER

Fairfax Grand Jury Returns Ignoramus; $5,000 Bond Ordered Removed.

A special grand jury of the circuit court of Fairfax County, Va., yesterday refused to indict Louis Ritchie, 24, son of former Juvenile Court Judge A. C. Ritchie, on a charge of felonious homicide in the death of former State Senator Walter Tansill Oliver, who died on November 22 from injuries suffered in an altercation with young Ritchie.

The grand jury, after hearing the witnesses, returned the presentment of Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson M. Farr, marked "Not a true bill." It was signed by B. H. Swart, foreman.

Following the jury's action, Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the circuit court, ordered Ritchie be relieved of the $5,000 bond on which he has been held since the death of State Senator Oliver.

Among those heard by the grand jury were Deputy Sheriff Henry Magarity, who went to the scene at young Ritchie's call the night of the altercation and removed Oliver to his home in an unconscious condition; and Dr. F. M. Brooks, who treated the injured man.

There were no eye-witnesses to the alleged fight, and since Senator Oliver died without regaining consciousness, the only account of the altercation was that given by young Ritchie.

He was reported to have told Commonwealth's Attorney Farr that Oli-

NEW REPEAL VOTE SOUGHT IN HOUSE

Schafer Petition Needs 145 Names to Force Action on Garner Resolution.

(Associated Press.)

Even as Senator Sheppard, of Texas, addressed the Senate yesterday in defense of the eighteenth amendment, marking for the thirteenth time the anniversary of its entrance into the Constitution, an aggressive new attempt at its repeal was launched in the House.

Sheppard told the senators that repeal would begin "the dismemberment of the soul of America." He announced for the first time that he would vote against submission of a repeal resolution.

Coincidentally, Representative Schafer (Republican), Wisconsin, offered to the House a petition to bring up for another vote Speaker Garner's resolution calling for flat repeal—the same proposal that failed by 6 votes to go through on the opening day of the session. Schafer's petition needs 145 signatures. If it gets them the House will vote on taking up the resolution, now in the Judiciary Committee by virtue of failure to adopt it under suspension of the rules on December 5.

A bare majority can vote the resolution to the floor, but it will take two-thirds to adopt it.

Reaffirms Belief in Plan to Expand Currency by Payment.

Advocates of cash payment of the bonus agreed yesterday to delay for the time being their efforts to obtain approval of such action.

At the conclusion of a meeting called by Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, Patman said the bonus advocates had "reaffirmed unanimously" their belief that the best method of expanding the currency was by paying the bonus.

No final action in favor of this proposal was taken, however. The members present authorized Patman to call another meeti[illegible] may be easier t[illegible] might happen to other currency inflation proposals. Estimates of attendance at the meeting varied from 35 to 75.

2 Miners Trapped By Gas Explosion

West Virginia Rescuers Are Hopeful on Finding Chalk Marks.

Morgantown, W. Va., Jan. 16 (A.P.). White chalk marks against the black [illegible] workings of the Scotts [illegible] mine tonight spurred rescue workers in their hunt for two men, trapped 500 feet from the surface by an explosion late today.

The marks were found by the maskde searchers working through the gas-filled passages at almost the same time that three other workers, also trapped by the explosion, found their way safely out of the mine tunnel at a point about 2 miles from the entrance. Unhurt, though bearing the scars of groping through the dark passages, the men emerged through an air shaft.

Normally, the mine employs 33 men in the day time, officials said, and about 75 at night. Work in the last few months has been only intermittent, however, and only the five men were in the workings when the detonation let go.

REPUBLICAN GROUPS NEAR PARTY BATTLE

Old Guard May Back Snell, Wadsworth or Mills to Replace Hoover.

(Associated Press.)

A quiet but determined effort among Republicans to revamp their party organization may project a trio of leading New Yorkers into the forefront of Presidential possibilities within the next three years.

This development, however, is dependent largely on whether the old guard is successful in its concerted move to recapture the party reins from President Hoover's followers. The Hoover contingent has definitely indicated it desires to remain in power, with a view to smoothing the way for the retiring President to accept the party's nomination or name the Presidential nominee in 1936.

Republicans on Capitol Hill expect open warfare for party control to break out between Hoover supporters and the Old Guardsmen after March 4, with the first test a stiff contest over the chairmanship of the national committee.

3 New Yorkers to Fore.

Despite the uncertainty of the outcome, discussion among party members on 1936 presidential possibilities is concentrating on three New Yorkers—Representative Bertrand H. Snell, House Republican leader; Representative-elect James W. Wadsworth and Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury.

In their plans to seize the organization, the Old Guardsmen say they want to select as successor to Everett Sanders, national committee chairman, an outstanding national figure, who, although a conservative, will be welcomed by the party's liberal wing in the West.

Around this chairman they hope to build a record and organization sufficient to recapture the House from the Democrats in 1934, elect Snell Speaker and thus lay the groundwork for regaining the administration in 1936.

Snell in Tight Fix.

As Speaker, Snell would hold the highest office of any Republican in a Democratic-controlled Government and as viewed by his colleagues, would be a logical candidate for the party's presidential nomination.

These developments, however, would place Snell in a peculiar position between the Old Guard and the Hoover supporters. Aligned with the former before he seized the leadership from former Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, last year, an ardent Hoover follower, Snell subsequently became allied with the President, as permanent chairman of the Republican national convention in Chicago, that renominated the Californian. A similar situation, Republicans claim, confronts Secretary Mills.

With members of the Old Guard looking with favor on both Mills and Snell, the impending intraparty conflict is viewed by Republicans as having much bearing on their opportunities, dependent on which side they take in it.

Wadsworth Charter Wet.

Some of the old guardsmen, however, are looking to Wadsworth, former senator from New York, as a likely prospect. Wadsworth was defeated for reelection several years ago after a campaign in which he stressed his opposition to prohibition. The current opposition to the dry laws is viewed by Wadsworth's friends as vindicating his original stand and enhancing his availability.

Meanwhile, anti-Hooverites on Capitol Hill have interpreted the nominations for office of Western Republican "lame ducks" sent to the Senate by President Hoover as a move to retain these men as his allies in the political future. This, they claim, has been emphasized by the fact that with the Democrats in control of that branch, there is no hope for their confirmation.

The CABINET PICTURE: A Preview

No. 4—Commerce and Labor

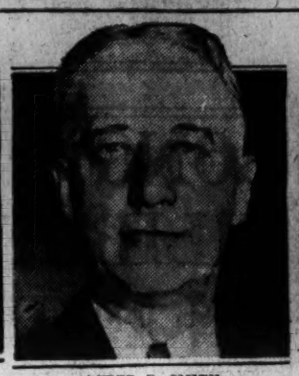
JESSE I. STRAUS.



ALFRED E. SMITH.

DANIEL J. TOBIN.

FRANCES PERKINS.

THIS is the fourth of a series of seven daily articles concerning possible selections for the Cabinet in the Roosevelt administration, and outlining some of the problems facing the appointees.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE.
(Associated Press)

Closely linked to any administration program designed to hasten the country's economic recovery will be the Secretaries of Commerce and Labor in the Roosevelt Cabinet.

Chief task of the Secretary of Commerce will be to coordinate activities of that department in assisting business to get back on its feet.

The big job of the Secretary of Labor will be to help in any administration program calculated to improve conditions for the country's wage earners, particularly the finding of employment for 11,000,000 to 15,000,000 jobless.

Among the prominent "possibilities" mentioned for the commerce portfolio are Jesse I. Straus, New York merchant; John H. Fahey, banker and newspaper publisher of Worcester, Mass; Edward N. Hurley, manufacturer and financier of Chicago; Alfred E. Smitth and, William H. Woodin, New York manufacturing executive.

High on the list of Secretary of Labor "prospects" is the name of Frances Perkins, industrial commissioner of New York, declared the first woman in American history to become a real Cabinet possibility.

The list includes also the names of Daniel J. Tobin, labor leader, backed by the American Federation of Labor, and of Senator Robert Wagner, of New York, specialist in unemployment legislation and labor problems.

The work to be done by the Secretary of Commerce and his staff of business counselors, statisticians and trade experts appears to hings in large measure on the results of the forthcoming world economic parley.

Government economists assert that unless something is done to check the world-wide trade-throttling trend to extreme economic nationalism, brought about by tariff increases, other import barriers and depreciated currencies, American exports will continue to sink lower and lower.

In the formulation of international trade agreements or in the drafting of reciprocal trade treaties with individual nations, as advocated by Mr. Roosevelt during the campaign, Department of Commerce experts would contribute their information and statistical background.

They also would endeavor to assist American business interests in the development of foreign markets and in the capitalization of opportunities growing out of such agreements. That is a specialty of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

In a broad sense, the chief function of the Labor Department and its directing head is to safeguard the wage earner.

Whatever the Government attempts to do in the matter of effecting a reduction of the work week, with a consequent spread of employment or regarding unemployment insurance, the new Secretary of Labor will be intimately concerned with the problem of unemployment.

To no other branch of the Government are conditions among the employed or unemployed so fully known as to the Labor Department.

Tomorrow—Interior, Postoffice, Justice Departments.

BUY-AMERICAN BILL IS PASSED BY HOUSE

Measure Forbids Purchase of Alien Materials and Supplies by U. S.

(Associated Press.)

Action to force the Government to purchase American-produced supplies and materials for its own use was taken yesterday by the House.

A bill designed to prevent foreign bidders and producers from selling their goods and construction materials in Government buildings and works, was approved and sent to the Senate by a vote of 180 to 18.

Speaker Garner, the Vice President-elect, invoked the drastic procedure of suspension of the House rules for the bill's consideration.

Sponsored by Representative Wilson (Democrat), Louisiana, the bill specifically directs the use of American products in all Federal buildings and works, including Hoover Dam on the Colorado River.

Exemptions were made in the case of articles for scientific use and when there are no domestic commodities or supplies of the type needed. It is also applicable to the Territories and possessions.

Some Latitude Allowed.

Purchasing officers also could buy other than American-made goods if it was decided that compliance of the law would be unreasonable or inconsistent with public interest. These purchases would be subject to review by the Comptroller General.

In opposing the measure, Representative Celler (Democrat), New York, told the House it "comes at the time when the world is suffering from tariff barriers and debt complications."

"We are trying to find some solution for these things," he said. "Foreign countries will take this as a slap in the face. It will bring reprisals."

"I understand," Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, said, "that almost all other governments have some such restrictions now."

Cochran Answers Critics.

Representative Wilson said the measure would give "millions of dollars to American manufacture and workmen."

"The law will cost the American taxpayers millions of dollars," Representative Stafford (Republican), Wisconsin, replied. "I cite a concrete example. Not a ton of steel is produced in this country without the use of foreign manganese. You would raise the cost of steel to this Government. The bill is incapable of application."

The provisions giving discretion in buying other than American products would answer all arguments against the measure, Representative Cochran (Democrat), Missouri, said.

PRINCE GEORGES TAX RECEIPTS ARE LESS

2 Per Cent Decline Noted in Collections for Current Fiscal Year.

Collections of State taxes in Prince Georges County during the first nine months of the current fiscal year were only 2 per cent lower than collections during the similar part of 1931, according to the quarterly report of Ernest R. Smith, deputy county treasurer.

The report shows, according to Mr. Smith, that the depression has not seriously affected the county's taxpaying ability. The 1932 collections of State taxes were $115,694, while in 1931 the sum of $118,009 was taken in. These amounts reflect more clearly than county tax collections the rate of payment, as the State tax rate was unchanged between 1931 and 1932.

County tax collections decreased about $14,000, even after allowing for the drop in the tax rate from $1.52 per $100 to $1.49. The first three quarters of the 1931 fiscal year brought in $759,285, as compared to $730,268 collected to December 31, 1932.

The front-foot benefit charges collected for the Suburban Sanitary Commission showed an increase for the current year, $101,141 being collected for the first part of 1931, and $109,786 for the first part of 1932. The park and sewer taxes remained about the same, being $28,290 for 1931, and $28,654 for 1932.

Judge Will Study Halloran Affidavit

Copy Sought of Mrs. Judd's Testimony Before Grand Jury.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Judge J. C. Niles in Superior Court today took under advisement an affidavit by attorneys for John J. Halloran, asking for a copy of the Maricopa County grand jury records of the testimony of Winnie Ruth Judd.

The affidavit accuses Mrs. Judd of perjury as a result of her appearance before the inquisitorial body, which later returned an indictment charging Halloran as an "accessory to the crime of murder," in connection with the Judd case.

Judge Niles previously overruled a demurrer and pleas in bar to the complaint against the Phoenix lumberman. By this he cleared the way for Halloran's preliminary hearing tomorrow.

Securities Sought In Boyer Shortage

Seven Attachments Issued to Find Likely Funds of Former Cashier.

At the behest of the Federal American National Bank & Trust Co. seven attachments were issued yesterday in District Supreme Court on five banks and two brokerage houses believed to have money or securities belonging to Charles D. Boyer, former cashier of the bank, who resigned two weeks ago after an alleged shortage of $130,000 was found.

The bank, through the law firm of Tobriner, Graham, Brez & Tobriner, instituted civil suit against Boyer for $13,973.02 and the attachments were issued on the basis of that.

The suit charges that on July 25 Boyer was given $8,000 from the bank to purchase stocks. The allegation is made that he appropriated this to his own use. There was a similar item involving $2,500 on November 30, 1932, and an item of $3,473.02 represented by a debit or withdrawal slip on December 27, 1932, which had been signed by Boyer without the consent of the bank.

prisonment, if the defendant is tried and found guilty. The minimum sentence under each count is one day, although a court may impose a suspended sentence.

Gerguson, who of late has called himself "Prince Michael Romanoff," is at liberty under $2,500 bond and was appearing on a Broadway theater stage at the moment the indictments were handed down. He will be arraigned tomorrow.

The question of how he will plead was reported to have been discussed at a conference between Gerguson's attorneys, Special Assistant Secretary of Labor Murray Garsson, United States Attorney George Z. Medalie and Assistant United States Attorney W. B. Herlands.

One indictment charges that Gerguson entered the country illegally on April 25, 1932, and again on December 22, 1932. The Government contends that on the latter occasion he crossed the Atlantic on the liner Europa.

In that indictment he also is charged with eluding examination by immigration officials.

The second indictment accused him of ten counts of "false swearing" before an inquiry board at Ellis Island in December. These charges were said to be based on his story he had entered the country that month by way of Canada.

His April entrance into the country was one of his most spectacular. He came on the Ile de France and slept in a dog kennel on the top deck the first two nights. Then he strode forth in evening clothes, announced himself as "Prince Michael" and was wined and dined by impressed fellow passengers.

He arrived in a first class cabin, explaining he had obtained a key by telling a steward he had lost his own.

He was ordered deported, escaped while in New York in the custody of an Ellis Island official, was recaptured and deported, served time in a French prison and then returned to America, only to be arrested while buying his favorite $10-a-pound tobacco at a Fifth avenue shop.

NEW VOTE ON GARNER REPEAL PROPOSAL SOUGHT IN HOUSE

confidently predicting that Congress would pass it this session.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, its sponsor, even went so far as to predict that President Hoover may sign the modified beer and wine bill despite all expressions to the contrary from the Chief Executive's friends.

Sheppard obtained the floor for his previously prepared address when Senator Long yielded in the course of his long filibuster against the Glass banking bill. The Texan asserted it would be impossible for prohibition to get a "fair hearing" at this time because of the misrepresentations resulting from "paid propaganda."

The determined prohibition defender charged that "the present movement for repeal obtained its principal impetus from the plethoric pocketbooks of a few millionaires, determined to shift the weight of taxation from their own shoulders to the masses, even if it dooms the masses to perpetual poverty and woe."

Remark by Moses.

He spoke without interruption, but at the conclusion of his address, Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, remarked that this also was the anniversary of the civil service reform act and added that the Democrats were having "quite as much difficulty" in its application as with prohibition.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, replied: "The senator makes that confession during a Republican administration. I thank him."

Sheppard said that although he was a believer in the right of petition, he was opposed to submitting the prohibition question at the present time.

"The present condition," he said, "is the result of paid propaganda and not of any spontaneous movement among the people.

"The country has been saturated with such subtle and such vicious misrepresentations regarding prohibition that it would be impossible to secure a fair hearing on the facts at this juncture."

In the House the thirteenth birthday of prohibition was remarked on by Representative Mead (Democrat), New York. He obtained one minute's time to say:

"It is a strange coincidence that the Democratic party was going out when prohibition came in and now that prohibition is going out, the Democratic party is coming back in.

"I feel we should pay our respects to prohibition. Now that it is dead, we might mention it for its historical value."

Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, Prohitbionist, promptly retorted:

"Instead of prohibition being dead, it's going to be alive when the gentleman's great-grandchildren have great-grandchildren."

Cites Party Conventions.

"A feeling amounting almost to an obsession has been widely established to the effect that the return of liquor will solve the farm problem, conquer the depression, supply the needed revenue, balance the budget, and restore prosperity," Sheppard said, adding:

"The treatment of dry speakers by the screaming mobs in the galleries of both the great party conventions at Chicago is a sample of the difficulty at this time of securing a fair and decent hearing for prohibition."

Explaining his failure to follow the results of the referendum on submission in Texas, Sheppard said friends of prohibition had "refrained almost entirely" from voting in that test.

He contended that prohibition had justified itself by a reduction in drinking. In 1914, which he called "the last unqualified wet year," he said the average consumption of liquor per capita was 23 gallons, while in 1930 it was 7½ gallons.

"Repeal will mean the definite arrest of human progress," he said.

MILLS DEMANDS SALES TAX AND CHALLENGES DEMOCRATS

for which the Government spent $2,400 a year in rent. When a new $100,000 public building was completed the rent was saved, but the operating costs and charges against the new building amount to $6,300 a year.

"In other words," Mr. Mills continued, "whatever the other charges may be in dollars and cents, the new postoffice in this particular town costs the United States Government $3,900 more a year than the rented quarters did."

Aside from its value as a stimulant to sustained economic recovery, the adoption of the pay-as-you-go program at Washington would tend to check extravagance and unsound fiscal policies in every other administrative unit throughout the country, Mr. Mills suggested.

Overcapitalized Improvements.

Never since the war, practically every State, every municipality, every county, every school district and every other political subdivision in the United States, has listened to the alluring plea that the were justified in capitalizing so-called permanent improvements, with the result that our States and municipalities have piled up a mountain of additional debt in the course of the last twelve years amounting to nearly $0,000,-1 000,000, under which the unfortunate taxpayer is struggling today, and which in many cases has brought the communities to the verge of bankruptcy.

In revising the public discussion of the budget problem since Congress assembled seven weeks ago, Secretary Mills emphasized that while some $500,000,000 in reductions were specifically recommended in the President's fiscal program, December 6, none of the major items of saving has yet been acted on by Congress.

He reiterated also that no real balancing of the budget can be achieved without new revenues from some quatrer. While he favors the general manufacturers' excise as the most promising approach to the problem, he would still be receptive "to any program" which will really do the job.

Challenge to Democrats.

Challenging the Democratic view that tremendous saving might be realized through reorganization of the Federal establishment, Mr. Mills pointed out that after eliminating the debt service, veteran costs, national defense items and similar expenses which are virtually fixed charges, only about $500,000,000 a year remains for the normal functions of the civil government.

"Such reorganization is desirable in the interest of greater efficiency and greater economy, but substantial relief to the taxpayer must be sought elsewhere," he said.

At another point Secretary Mills referred to the item of $338,000,000 carried in the 1934 income tabulation as due from foreign governments on their war debts. Recent events, he added, have made this a "highly uncertain item."

Pledged to Economies.

"Without the manufacturers' excise tax it will be extremely difficult to balance the budget, since the field of new taxes has been pretty well exhausted by the revenue act of 1932. It should not be forgetten that we adopted income tax rates that run as high as 63 per cent, which is an extraordinarily high peace-time rate, and an inheritance tax law with rates running as high as 45 per cent."

Characterizing Government spending beyond income as "demoralising," Mr. Mills said that "the ruinous consequences" of such policies already "are visible throughout the United States today."

"Every one of the economies that go to make up this saving of over $500,000,000 is set out in detail in the budget message. It requires but the affirmative vote of Congress to make these economies effective, and both parties are pledged to drastic economies and to a balanced budget. The time to make good these pledges is now. The need is obvious. The plan is there. There is no excuse for further delay."

CONFEREES AGREED ON DEFICIENCY BILL

Byrns Files Report in House on Measure Carrying $625,000 D.C. Aid.

Points of difference on the $31,000,000 deficiency bill, carrying $625,000 for local unemployment relief, were ironed out yesterday by House and Senate conferees, and a report filed with the House late last night by House Appropriation Chairman Joseph W. Byrns.

The $625,000 local relief item was not touched by the conferees as both Houses had approved the figure. Just before the House adjourned, Representative Byrns asked an received permission to file a report before midnight. Under lay-over rules, this would permit the House to vote today on the report.

Conferees revised and accepted the McKellar amendment, requiring the joint congressional committee on internal revenue taxation to approve income tax refunds of $20,000 and over. McKellar had placed the limit at $5,000. The House will be asked to vote on this item when the conference report comes up.

Although Senate conferees were named last week, House conferees were not designated until yesterday, on the return of Representative Byrns from a sick bed. Besides Mr. Byrns, they included Representatives Buchanan (Democrat), Texas; Taylor (Democrat), Colorado; Wood (eRpublican), Indiana, and Wason (Republican), New Hampshire.

The Senate amendment, providing $40,000 for expenses incident to the inaugural celebration at the Capitol, was reduced to $35,000.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 16.—With committees of both the Senate and House appointed, and organization otherwise perfected with the exception of naming minor employes, the Maryland Legislature will reconvene tomorrow night for the third week of the 90-day biennial session.

The Assembly plans to save about 20 per cent in the distbiuution of minor positions. Instead of curtailing the number of employes, the lawmakers are on record for reducing per diem pay from $5 to $4, and some appointees will be placed on half-time basis.

Only a few proposed laws have thus far made their appearance. The steady flow of legislation is not expected to get under way until next week. eManwhile committees will get down to routine. Under present plans the lawmakers will recess Wedensday until next Monday or Tuesday, when the program will call for more frequent sessions. Portracted wrangling is predicted on several pending proposals.

The charge, as given in a police document filed in trial court, is that Pratt offered $10 to a policeman who stopped Pratt's automobile to accuse him of speeding. Pratt's father was the late John Teele Pratt, financier whose estate was estimated at more than $10,000,000 at his death.

Buffalo Street Battle Is Sequel to Sugar Feud in Cleveland.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—John Porello, 38, uncle of Angelo Porello, 25-year-old former Clevelander, who was shot and killed in a gun fight here last Friday, pleaded not guilty when arraigned today on a charge of assault, first degree.

Porello is accused by police of participating in a shooting affray together with his nephew and Samuel Varisco, 32, Buffalo politician, who is charged with first-degree murder in connection with the killing. Varisco, police said, admitted shooting the younger Porello, but said he fired in self-defense after being shot at by the other two men.

The Porellos are members of a once wealthy and powerful Cleveland family, four of whom have been killed in an alleged feud with another family over control of the corn sugar racket in the Ohio city. Seven other persons have died as a result of the feud.

Ritchie was said to have told Oliver to cease his language and to go home, and, when the latter refused, to have struck him with his fist. Oliver fell heavily to the pavement in front of the Ritchie home.

At the time of the altercation Oliver's son, Lewis, was held in the Baltimore city jail, having been arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace and carrying concealed weapons. Both Senator Oliver and Judge Ritchie attended the hearing in Baltimore Tuesday, November 22, when Lewis Oliver was remanded to jail in default of bond on the two charges on which he was arrested and a third charge of assault with intent to kill his estranged wife, Barbara Ritchie Oliver. He was later released on bond to attend his father's funeral.

A daughter, Barbara Wayne, was born to Mrs. Oliver on November 21, in a Baltimore Hospital, following the alleged assault.

About two weeks ago Oliver instituted habeas corpus proceedings to obtain custody of the infant, and last week his estranged wife filed a memorandum of divorce proceeding in which she asks exclusive custody of the child.

A hearing on the habeas corpus proceedings, scheduled for yesterday morning, was postponed by Judge McCarthy until next Friday.

Service on the divorce proceedings was obtained on Oliver Saturday.

St. Louis, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Determined to stage a big game hunt on a Mississippi River island in southeast Missouri, Denver M. Wright, leather specialities manufacturer, set forth today on his second synthetic lion hunt.

Wright's first hunt was thwarted last October when interlopers killed the two young lionesses he had loosed on an island.

In a cage on a truck trailer, Wright took with him today the two lions he recently purchased from a circus farm. These lions, he said, weigh 400 pounds each and are "savage," maneating beasts, captured in the wilds of Africa.

Testimony Closes At Trial of Beard

Washington Resident Is Accused of Income Tax Delinquency.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 16.—Final arguments will be made tomorrow in the case of Samuel R. Beard, of Washington, on trial before Judge W. Calvin Chesnue in the United States District Court.

Shortly before the noon recess today the Government completed its case and at the conclusion of the afternoon session defense counsel said they were ready to close their case.

The Government contends Beard made false and fraudulent income tax returns for the years of 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1930. One of the chief points at issue involves the possession by Beard of $275,000 in cash, which the defense contends he kept in safe deposit box and from which he derived no income.

He was rushed to St. Pancras Hospital, where skilled doctors and nurses battled to save his life so that the law might try to send him to the gallows.

Whether the prisoner-patient gave the police or the attending clergyman any information was not made known. In any event the police claimed to have sufficient evidence to have him convicted of murdering his friend and of so burning the body that it first was identified as Furnace's.

But for the unexpected discovery of bullet wounds at a routine inquest, Furnace would have been reported as dead through misadventure and Spatchett reported merely as missing.

RURAL SOVIET HEADS REBUKED BY STALIN

Laxity in Delivering Grain to Government Draws Fire From Dictator.

Moscow, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—In a second speech to Communist party leaders made public tonight, Joseph V. Stalin took the party severely to task for the failure of its rural leadership to grasp the newly created problems of agriculture, on which failure he puts blame for the serious shortcomings in 1932 grain collections.

The speech was delivered January 11 before the Communist party central committee and the central control committee. The bolshevist chieftain declared that the party henceforth must take over leadership of the entire collective area so as to perfect a new agricultural structure and protect it against anti-Soviet elements.

In this he apparently referred to the establishment of political sections at every state farm, machine and tractor station, recently authorized by the party to insure closer control of agriculture.

Asserting that grain collections in 1932 were carried out with much greater difficulties than in the previous year, despite a better harvest, Stalin cited as the main defects the failure of the comrades to understand the new conditions created last May by the decree allowing peasants to sell their surplus in the open market. Their misguided belief that the virtual completion of collectivization meant they could relax their responsibilities, and their inability properly to gauge and meet the new tactics of kulaks, and other village anti-Soviet elements.

Pointing out that the May decree led most of the peasants to reason it was better to withhold grain from the government so as to have more of it to sell in the private market at higher prices, Stalin said:

"Unfortunately, our rural workers did not understand this simple logic, contenting themselves by allowing the peasants to drift from their duty to the government when they should have increased and speeded up collections to meet new conditions.

"The politbureau and the central committee did not sufficiently emphasize the dangers attending these new conditions. They showed too much confidence in the perspicacity of our workers and villages."

NEWFOUNDLAND MAY MERGE WITH CANADA

Recent $1,500,000 Loan to Colony Revives Prospects; Bennett Hopeful.

St. John's, N. F., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The recent agreement by Canada and the British government to advance the Newfoundland government the necessary funds to meet interest charges on the colony's debt, due this month, has revived discussion here of the possibility of ultimate merger with the Canadian confederacy.

The facts that the two governments joined to advance the $1,500,000 needed to meet the Newfoundland interest payments did not come as a complete surprise in view of the fact that R. B. Bennett, Canadian premier, had on two previous occasions saved Newfoundland from defaulting.

It has been no secret that it has been the aspiration of every Canadian premier since the time when the maritime provinces came into the confederacy, to induce Great Britian's oldest crown colony to do likewise.

Increasing Seriousness.

Now the increasing seriousness of the financial situation, it is believed, may do much to stimulate action. The colony's public debt has doubled in the past twelve years and now equals approximately $400 per capita. At least 25 per cent of the population is in no position to help liquidate the debt, since it is, itself, dependent on government relief.

Were Canada to assume Newfoundland's debt, it is argued here, she would increase the dominion's debt charges per capita per annum by only 20 cents. At the same time, it is pointed out, Canada's population would be increased by more than a quarter of a million.

Feeling of Confidence.

A number of factors are regarded here, as likely to pave the way for merger. The recent gesture of Great Britain and Canada is highly appreciated by the entire population and has done much to establish a better feeling while, since last July, when the administration headed by Fred C. Alderdice, as premier, took hold here, a feeling of confidence in his government has increased.

Another thing has been the recent report of a gold-producing formation in Newfoundland. This has inspired hope of increased colonial wealth which, from Canada's point of view, would make Newfoundland a better "buy."

In event of the inclusion of Newfoundland in the Canadian confederacy, it is believed here that the dominion government would immediately redeem the various issues of colonial securities and refinance them with one issue at a lower interest rate than the present 5 per cent.

ORGANIZER DIES

LIEUT. MINA C. VAN WINKLE.

LIEUT. VAN WINKLE, SOCIOLOGIST, DEAD

Was Founder and Director of Woman's Bureau of Police Department.

Lieut. Mina C. Van Winkle, who founded and headed the Woman's Bureau of the Metropolitan Police Department for fourteen years, died yesterday at her home at 1425 Thirty-fourth street after an illness of more than a year.

Mrs. Van Winkle, internationally known as a policewoman and social reformer, was retired from the Police Department less than a year ago because of prolonged illness.

She had undergone an operation at Johns Hopkins University, and when it became apparent that she would be unable to resume her duties Sergt. Rhoda Milliken was named lieutenant and head of the bureau in her place.

Came to Washington in 1918.

Several times in her career in Washington, Lieut. Van Winkle successfully fought persistent efforts to have the Woman's Bureau abolished. She waged a continuous fight to have it permanently established by law; but in this did not achieve her goal, as it is subject to the order of the District Commissioners.

In 1918 she came to Washington to organize the woman's division in the Police Department. At that time Raymond W. Pullman was major and superintendent of police.

Previous to her coming to Washington she was successively the head of a girls' home, financial secretary to the Board of Associated Charities and chairman of the Infant Hygiene Association, all at Newark, N. J.

"Dollar-a-Year" Woman.

She served as a member of the speakers' bureau of the Federal Food Administration during the World War as a "dollar-a-year" woman and rendered great aid to the Government's food conservation program.

In addition to her duties with the Police Department, Lieut. Van Winkle supervised a training course at George Washington University for prospective social workers and others interested in social welfare work.

The importance of her work as head of the woman's bureau is indicated by the fact that every year more than 3,000 cases are handled there. One of the bureau's chief functions is the maintenance of the House of Detention, where children detained by authorities are held.

Met With Opposition.

She met with much opposition in the development of the bureau, especially in its early stages, but upon her retirement it has grown into a necessary and important part of the Metropolitan Police Department.

Mrs. Van Winkle was a past president of the International Association of Police Women.

Other organizations to which she belonged were the League of Women Voters, the National Conference of Social Work, the Art and Archeology Association, the Women's City Club, the Monday Evening Club, the Soroptimists, the Ride and Hunt Club, the Penguin Club, and many other groups here and in Newark.

Was on Honor Roll.

Mrs. Van Winkle was on the honor roll of the National League of Women Voters as one of the American women who did most to bring about woman's suffrage.

Her work at Washington was the inspiration for the founding of women's bureaus in police departments in many of the cities of the Nation. She was frequently called into consultation by officials who were considering the establishment of such services.

Smith Aids Needy Author Of 'Sidewalks of New York'

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—That "happy warrior" who sallied forth to the political wars to the tune of "The Sidewalks of New York," today came to aid of the now destitute author of the famous lyric.

When Alfred E. Smith, former governor and one-time Presidential nominee, picked up his morning newspaper he was surprised to read of the plight of James W. Blake, who 34 years ago wrote the words of the song that the former governor made famous to a newer generation.

Out of a job for a year, with a sister and a blind brother to support, Blake, now 70, was forced yesterday to give up quarters in a dollar-a-day hotel and take to the sidewalks of New York.

But things were not as they used to be—perhaps they never were, or the sidewalks may look different at 36 from what they seem at 70.

So Blake went to a newspaper office and told his story. The story that Al Smith read with his breakfast.

Immediately Smith got into touch with the emergency work and relief bureau, was assured that Blake would be taken care of immediately, and asked to be kept informed on the case.

Today Blake went to see William H. Matthews, of the work and relief bureau, was given money to rent an apartment, a promise of light clerical work, as soon as he felt equal to it, and in the spring, said Matthews, Blake, his sister and brother will be sent to a farm maintained in Dutchess County.

"No one," said Matthews, "needs to worry about Mr. Blake from now on."

And today it seemed Blake himself was the least worried of all. He dropped from sight early in the day, busily engaged in seeking an apartment to reestabish a home.

First, however, he expressed his gratification over the interest shown in his case by Smith.

"Al Smith," he said, "is an old New Yorker and so am I," which in the view of Blake seemed to explain many things.

series and an additional $5 will be paid for each photograph used in this manner.

There is no obligation or expense attached to participation in this contest and every unmarried girl is invited to submit her photograph for the approval of the official judges who will be the following nationally recognized authorities: Mrs. Waller Borden, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. Pauline Palmer, Wallace Kirk and John T. McCutcheon.

Just mail or bring to the offices of The Washington Post a photograph of yourself or a friend, accompanied by the information indicated by the coupon printed elsewhere in this paper today. This information may be filled in upon the printed coupon or upon a separate sheet of paper if desired. Photographs must have been taken within the past 12 months, however, and be at least 6 by 8 inches in size.

There is no official age limit but because of the measure of responsibility indicated by the title of Queen, it is recommended that girls below the age of 16 should not enter. Beyond that point the matter of years will have no effect upon the decision of the judges. The photograph of a woman of 40 may be more expressive of real feminine "charm" than that of the 18-year-old school girl. It is the elusive charm of feminine faces for which the judges will search rather than for the superficiality of beautiful contours.

Professional beauties such as actresses and artists models, together with employes of The Washington Post and members of their families, are alone barred from entrance in this most unusual and interesting competition.

To every other unmarried girl, wherever she may reside, The Washington Post issues a most cordial invitation to submit her photograph and to share in the financial rewards and honors that will be conferred upon the subjects of 51 photographs.

Scared Thug Kills Comrade in Holdup

Police Wound Robber in Running Battle and His Victim Dies.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—An alleged robber who police said became unnerved by his prospective victim's shouts for help today, accidentally shot and fatally wounded his companion, identified as Dominick Paradise, 27, of Bridgeport, Conn., and was himself seriously wounded in a running gun fight with police.

The two shootings, at first believed to have been unrelated, were connected by police when the wounded man identified the body of his companion in the morgue.

The wounded man, identified as Nicolo Minardo, 35, was said, by police to have formerly lived in Bridgeport. Police also said he was a former convict, and they held him on charges of homicide, attempted robbery, felonious assault and violation of the antifirearms law. ## Etsate Nonexistent, Claimants' Hopes Fall

Winchester, Va., Jan. 16 (A.P.). Dreams of vast wealth reputedly entertained by claimants to an alleged Frederick County estate are nothing but dreams so far as C. C. Brannon, clerk of the circuit court, can determine.

Mr. Brannon has received communications from persons in Canada claiming to be heirs of one Andrew Conrad Cline, said to have lived in Frederick County from 1799 to the middle of the nineteenth century, inquiring about the settlement of Cline's estate, which they said amounted to 1,000 acres of land valued at $48,000,000.

Mr. Brannon said he had never heard of any such estate, and that, furthermore, the combined areas of a dozen or more counties like Frederick would be required to command a price equal to that mentioned.

The pilot said his plane performed like an express train, keeping perfectly to schedule. He and his companions plan to depart early tomorrow for Rio de Janeiro. From there they will go to Buenos Aires. They set out from Istres, France, on Thursday.

One passenger made the flight with Mermoz, Rene Couzinet, the builder of the plane. Others aboard were a second pilot, a navigator, radio operator and two mechanics. They set out Monday morning from St. Louis, Senegal, planning to make the trip in 14 hours—just 2 minutes under the actual time it took them.

eyes while they were in front of you or were they behind you?"

"I don't know."

Large Crowd Gathers.

After Williams reached the bank there was an alarm broadcast that the Commercial National Bank had been robbed. The arrival of several police cars, with shrieking sirens, at the busy intersection caused a gathering of many pedestrians.

Williams, who had been employed by the Southern Maryland Trust Co. for seven years, made two trips each week to the Commercial National Bank to make deposits for the Seat Pleasant banking house. Each time he came to the Capital bank he carried approximately $5,000.

Coud Not Suffer Loss.

Leo J. Naughton, secretary of the Seat Peasant Bank, said the money was covered by a bond and no loss could be sustained by the bank. The money Williams was carrying, Mr. Naughton said, was just "a normal Monday deposit." The money, with the exception of $15 in gold, was in currency, he said.

The messenger formerly was paid $25 a month; but recently he was reduced to $15. Each week he was entrusted with approximately $10,000, which he always carried in a bag. He always came to Washington on a street car. He was unarmed. He was a trusted employe of the bank, Mr. Naughton said.

Chief of Detectives Burke sent a corps of detectives to the vicinity of the reported holdup, but they were unable to find any witnesses.

Stories in Conflict.

Williams said at first that he was robbed when he stepped off the street car, then he said it was while near the Evans Building, and then it was near Fourteenth street and New York avenue. His first story that a suspicious man rode on the street car from the District line conflicted with a later statement that the man boarded the car while in the downtown section.

pulled the trigger again. She must have been holding the gun away from her head, because I saw a flash.

"Then she dropped to the floor, almost at my feet."

Leedy said that he first met Miss Toombs, a former Census Bureau employe, in a drug store where he was employed and where she was a regular customer.

Detectives said that the gun was held very near the girl's head when it was fired, as it left powder marks on her skin. However, they would not express an opinion as to whether it was suicide or murder.

The bullet from the first shot described by Leedy was found imbedded in a dresser.

The dead girl's father, George W. Toombs, is head of an accounting firm. When she left home Sunday she said that she would return by midnight, Mr. Toombs said.

SENATE TO DEBATE ON FILIPINOS TODAY

pects were anything but bright for acceptance of the measure there.

After a caucus the insular House sent a cablegram to the independence mission in Washington declaring the measure would not be acceptable.

This information did not coincide with developments at the Capitol. Letters were received by all senators yesterday saying the present bill was acceptable to the mission, which represents the Legislature.

Sergio Osmena, acting president of the insular Senate and joint leader of the mission, said the cablegram had not been received.

Declined at First.

At the outset of yesterday's session Long refused to yield for an agreement to vote on the Philippine question and also declined the floor to Senator Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, who wanted to speak on the thirteenth anniversary of prohibition.

Later in the day, however, he decided to let the Philippine question come to a vote and yielded the floor to Sheppard. Galleries were crowded to capacity as the debate progressed.

Senator Shortridge (Republican), California, took the floor after Sheppard in support of independence. He urged that America be given "a crown of glory instead of a crown of shame" and redeem its promise of independence to the islands.

Cites Coolidge Statement.

He recited a number of statements by former Presidents, including one by the late Calvin Coolidge, as "warnings to America to get out of the Orient and to stay out of the Orient."

"If we stay there, we of a surety will be drawn into great and serious trouble," he continued. "We ought not to hold these people in subjection against their prayers. They are quite capable of self-government."

Up to the time Shortridge spoke, only one senator, Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, had taken the President's side in the debate.

Long proposed at 5:20 p. m. that the Senate recess until today with an agreement to vote on the Philippines at 2 p. m., but Senator Robinson promptly objected.

Puts Petition Back.

"All right," Mr. President, "I'm going to make another speech on the subject," Long asserted.

Robinson half drew the cloture petition from his pocket and then put it back as Senator Borah asked for a quorum call.

Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, chairman of the Territories Committee, who broke with the President on the Philippine issue, claimed a four-vote margin for independence advocates last night, even with the entire membership voting.

He said the opposition needed 33, with all voting, to sustain the President, and the independence advocates needed 64 to carry over the veto.

"We've got 68 and haven't lost a vote because of the delay," he asserted confidently.

port, which accused Japan of aggression in Manchuria, no one in Washington will attempt to guess.

In informed circles, however, there is a belief that a solid front to stop hostilities will not be obtained at Geneva.

The State Department has not been advised of any prospective invitation to the United States to join the conciliation committee of the League, and little hope that an early settlement of the difficulties in the Far East will be worked out is held in administration quarters.

Hoover's 'Cousin' Saves Farm From Forced Sale

Des Moines, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—A. E. Hoover, of Grand Meadows, Minn., who said he was a cousin of President Hoover, completed satisfactory arrangements with the Des Moines Joint Stock Land Bank today to prevent a foreclosure sale of his farm.

With R. I. Chaffee, T. G. Staynor and E. A. Quandt, of the Mower County Minnesota Farmers Holiday Association, Hoover met officials of the bank and worked out a plan whereby the land bank would accept a deed to the farm in full settlement and satisfaction of its mortgage.

Grief Causes Sale Of Famous Estate

Divorced Husband of Utah Silver Queen Killed Himself at Sea.

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Jeweled glassware, antique furniture and valuable paintings, the possessions of the Utah silver queen, Mrs. Susana Emery-Holmes-Delitch, went on sale at her two-acre estate here today.

It was a sale, friends of the wealthy 74-year-old society matron said, that was prompted by a domestic tragedy and not a need for money. The estate had been appraised at $500,000, but George Fisher, auctioneer, said the replacement value would exceed a million dollars.

Friends recounted that Mrs. Emery-Holmes-Delitch, who made millions years ago by keen business management of silver mines near Salt Lake City, had grieved over the suicide of her divorced third husband, Dr. Radovan Delitch, Paris surgeon, who hanged himself at sea. Sorrow, they said, and a wish to forget had led her to dispose of the estate.

Mrs. Hutton Is Denied Delay in Salary Case

Los Angeles, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Aimee Semple-McPherson-Hutton, evangelist, today was denied a six month's continuance of the $1,900 salary suit brought against her and her husband, David L. Hutton, by Roy L. Watkins.

Attorneys for Watkins presented a score of affidavits in opposition to the pleas of her attorney for postponement on account of illness. The affidavits set forth that the evangelist appeared well enough to leave the temple, go for drives and visit the Federal building to apply for a passport. Trial of the suit was set for February 24.

POWER PLANT DELAY IN HOUSE FORECAST

Holaday Feels Plan Will Not Be Acted Upon at Short Session.

Action approving construction of a $35,500,000 municipality-owned power plant to supply both public and private local needs will not be taken at this short session of Congress, Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), a member of the House District Appropriations Subcommittee, predicted yesterday.

Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, chairman of the subcommittee, who Sunday made the report public, declined to forecast what the committee will do. The group never has taken any action, favorable or unfavorable, on the report.

"It was released merely as a matter of public information, at the request of Engineer Commissioner Gotwals," Cannon said.

While no formal vote on the report is contemplated, Chairman Cannon said he will ask committee members what they want to do with it before drafting the District oppropriation bill.

Cannon said he may be guided by Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, on whose suggestion the study was made. Simmons goes out of office March 4.

Holaday said too little time remains this session for a thorough congressional analysis of the report, and intimated he thinks the time is not auspicious for the large appropriations called for.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

WAS your money part of $4,000,000 in checks, drafts and money orders found in letters opened at the Washington Dead Letter Office in a single year?

RILEY

Did your holiday greetings you send to friends you've lost track of during the year get to their destinations? Do you wonder why you failed to get response from Harry Smith or Elizabeth Jones?

Just now is one of the busiest times of the twelve months for Burton G. Cowles, superintendent, and his assistant, Everett E. Warner. They're opening pouches from many cities, sorting contents and trying to put mail into proper hands.

The accompanying picture shows more than 20,000 dead letters. Some will be recalled to life, but some will be found undeliverable. Miss M. E. McDonald, they call her "Mac," her fellow workers do, is operating a letter opening machine at the rate of 50,000 a day. The mail then passes to clerks who sort the contents, make notes of valuables, notify the sender or addressee, if the information can be found inside.

A pile of stamps lay on a desk, most of them in strips, uncanceled. They were collected from letters.

IT is not uncommon for a person to buy several stamps, stick one on a letter, put unused stamps and letter in the same pocket. Later when the letter is mailed, out come the other stamps and all go into the chute or mail box.

"The more valuable a letter is, the less care is taken in mailing," Mr. Cowles tells us. "It is carelessness which causes letters to come to us that have nothing on the face except a postage stamp. No name, no city, nothing. If the contents fail to assist us, we file the matter under a card index. Some day the letter may be identified and it is there for the rightful owner."

Ninety-nine cases in 100 the checks and drafts go to the proper person. The office checks with banks and the property is restored.

Of more than 4,000 examinations daily, the average clerk can classify 450 to 500 letters and make returns in one day. Correspondence is resorted to often.

THERE will be 2,000,000 fewer dead letters for 1932. Many Christmas cards went out under half postage and are not termed first class matter. They will not be received in Washington.

January 5, 1933, the office had on hand unopened only 77,000 pieces of mail, as contrasted to 285,000 pieces the same date in 1932.

Not long ago checks intended for the home office of a chain store company amounting to several thousand dollars bore no address on the envelope. They got home all right with ease after the contents were sorted.

One of the most difficult jobs the department has is educating fourth class postmasters to check the addresses on parcel post matter before accepting. As result, parcels are on hand for disposal. The packages that can not be returned are classified and periodic sales held.

Commerce:

Martha Williams is recovering from injuries received when hit by a taxi Christmas.

Herman ". LaCrosse, merchandising research, convalescing from appendicitis.

The fresh water cod that pitched in on another fish half his size Saturday intent on devouring it quit the job cold Monday at the Commerce Aquarium and then scooted under a log in the tank, seemingly a bit ashamed, either from failure or exhaustion.

Did you know Willis E. Hurd, Marine Weather Bureau, is somewhat of a hypnotist? Yes, sir, here's the recipe:

First catch the rooster. Let it hang head down. Draw a chalkline as straight as you can draw a chalkline, beginning at the fowl's head. Set the rooster down and watch him keep his stare fixed on the chalkline.

EVERY knock's a boost.

Perhaps Madamoiselle had been been expecting Fedd, who produced his note. She read, screamed for her maid. The janitor caught her as she swooned.

"Ee-ee-eek!" she cried out.

Fedd understood, for "eek" in any language is the same. Hadn't American Federal employes been "eeking" since the first pay cut, in fact, ever since Congress found that little, short ugly word and used it as a guide for American business generally, which took its cue from dear old Congress?

Madamoiselle recovered, readjusted her rouge and eyelash lacquer, pointed to the taxicab, and in no uncertain terms showed Fedd the theoretical gate. Fedd got the drift.

Something we didn't know: Bricks underlie those broad, natural stone slabs in the sidewalk in front of State Department. Base is two and one-half bricks thick, we noticed, when they dug up part of the walk.

Assistant Prohibition Director Howard T. Jones is one of the boys, when it comes to toppling duckpins with others in the Dynamite League. He's president of the circuit.

Help! Help!

THE ORDER OF THE DIARY.

MEMBERSHIP in the Federal Diary is now open. In order to be a Diaryist in good standing one must be a constant reader. If you are not a constant reader, we both lose.

A Diaryist should, but not necessarily, have a sense of humor. Shouldn't we all? Some might say they wouldn't be working for Uncle Sam unless they had a sense of humor. But be that as it is.

The way to be a Diaryist in extra good standing is to send in your paragraphs. It's what might be called a wide-open column—open for flowers or brickbats.

So after you have written your brickbat, checked it for grammar and syntax, see if there is any other tax, and run—don't walk—to the nearest mail box.

And while we speak of mail boxes, the styles don't change—just a homely little old mail box. Will the aluminum age demand we have bigger and lighter mail boxes, or will Congress raise postage again?

What good would it do to have a deficit if we couldn't raise postage?

And what good would a deficit be if we couldn't have Congress?

And what good would Congress be if we couldn't frank letters and help the Postoffice Department have its own little private deficit?

Diary Hobby List

What's Your Hobby?

(This is the fourth of a series of articles prepared by the National Committee on Wood Utilization in its effort to bring about the utilization of secondhand wooden containers such as boxes, crates and barrels now thrown away or burned.)

THE fact that birds feed on practically all insect pests and are instrumental in destroying weeds also, would make their presence desirable even without beautiful coloring and lovely songs.

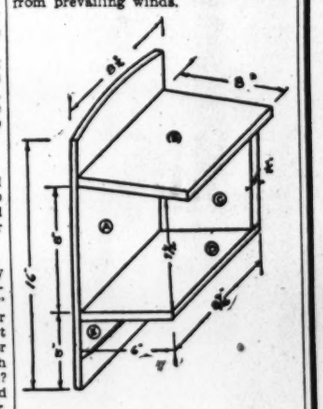
A simple way to attract, enjoy, and enlist services of these little creatures is to provide them with suitable and convenient ready-made homes.

To be satisfactory, bird houses should be well-built, durable, cool, rainproof, and accessible, since they should be cleaned after each brood's departure. Painting the houses increases their resistance to weather and adds to their attractiveness—brown, gray, and dull green are preferred colors for painting.

The roof should slope sufficiently to shed water, or should have a groove cut across the face of the overhanging part. It should overhang the entrance by 2 or 3 inches, to keep out driving rain. Holes bored on an upward slant help to serve this purpose, also.

Ventilation should be provided by boring two or three augur holes through the side walls near the roof; this will allow heat to escape without making draughts, to which young birds are particularly susceptible. Or, a small opening could be left between the top of a side wall and the roof.

Inner walls should be roughed or grooved, to help the young ones in learning to reach the entrance. As a general rule, bird houses should be placed rather low and not in dense woods, with the entrance turned away from prevailing winds.



Sheet-metal guards 18 inches in length placed around trunks of trees or poles at such a height as to prevent cats from springing from the ground and securing a foothold will protect birds in houses from these enemies.

All bird houses should be repaired and thoroughly cleaned just before nesting season. Periodical inspection of bird houses is essential after each brood has left. After cleaning the inside, the houses should be sprayed with cresol to destroy any pests that may have been overlooked.

In addition to planting trees, shrubs and vines and putting up waterproof roosting boxes, the providing of nesting material such as rags, ravelings, twine, excelsior, straw, hay, cotton and hair helps to attract birds. Food and water should also be supplied when not immediately available.

With few exceptions, birds will more than pay for what little damage they may do.

Robin, Catbird or Brown Thrasher Shelter.

Lumber necessary to construct this shelter can easily be secured from an old wooden box.

Round off the top end of (A)) as shown. Shape side (C) and nail (D) to (C). Secure (C) and (D) to (A). Cut 3 by 3 inches square piece diagonally across ends to form brackets (E). Nail brackets (E) to (A) and under side of (D). Nail roof (B) to (A) and (C). These shelters should be placed 6 to 15 feet above the ground in partly shaded spots along the main branches of trees or in the shelter of overhanging eaves of a shed or porch roof.

RECITAL OFFERED BY RACHMANINOFF

Mrs. Hoover Applauds Delightful Program Given in Constitution Hall.

Rachmaninoff, poet of the piano, composer and soloist, gave a concert at Constitution Hall yesterday afternoon under the auspices of Mrs. Wilson-Greene, which will be remembered in the annals of this year's musical programs.

Mrs. Hoover, with a party of friends, occupied the stage box and led the applause which greeted the artist after each group.

That Rachmaninoff is a master of Chopin was shown in his playing of a group of selections by this great Polish composer. Seldom has Washington heard Chopin's work so well presented. In the group were included a "Barcarolle," a "Valse," a "Nocturne" and "Ballade."

Beethoven's Sonata Appasionata gave the best opportunity of the afternoon for the soloist to display his amazing command of his instrument. Its three movements played without appointment held the audience enthralled and the pianist-composer was obliged to return again and again to the stage to bow his acknowledgments at its conclusion.

"Daisies," one of Rachmaninoff's own compositions, met with acclaim as did his arrangement of "Brooklet" by Schumann.

The balance of the program was devoted to compositions by Liszt and Schumann, favorite composers of this peer of theirs in that difficult musical field.

Maker of Weapon Gets 360 Days.

William N. Robey was sentenced to 360 days in jail yesterday in Police Court after he had been convicted of carrying a deadly weapon which he allegedly made while at Occoquan last month. Robey was also convicted of intoxication, assault and disorderly conduct.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

562.

HOW TO PLAY BRIDGE AND REMAIN MARRIED.

WHY is it that the average husband-and-wife partnership at the Bridge table seems to end in disaster? Periodically, the newspapers carry stories concerning the misunderstandings of husband-and-wife partnerships. There seems to be no reason why a married couple can not reach a mutual agreement on a game from which each member of the partnership derives a great deal of pleasure.

Lieut. and Mrs. Robert F. Carter, of Fort Meade, Md., after ten years of partnership in Rubber and Tournament play, have reached the conclusion that the rules below, if followed by other husband-and-wife combinations, will produce a more harmonious game for both the husband and wife, as well as the other plays at the table, who must innocently suffer while the constant bickering of the married partners is in progress.

For the husband:

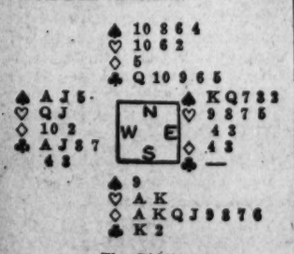
1. Don't yell at your wife.
2. Don't blame your wife for your error.
3. Be as decent to your wife as you would if she were another man's wife.
4. Don't think that a marriage certificate constitutes appointment as a chain-gang boss.
5. When you teach your wife a new bid or point out an error, don't sputter, but simply talk intelligently.

For the wife:

1. Don't insist on the last word.
2. Let your husband "dominate" the play and bid the psychics.
3. Don't point out your husband's errors as if you never made one yourself.
4. Don't always remind your husband you taught him how to play. He's probably taught you much more since.
5. Return courtesy with courtesy, and a display of temper—justified or unjustified—with a smile, but not an insincere or "superior" smile.

Shortly after formulation and discussion of the above rules, the following hand occurred in a Rubber game at the Deschapelles Club of Baltimore, Md.:

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The Bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2♠ (1) | 3♣ | Dbl. | Pass |
| 5◇ (2) | Pass | 5♠ (3) | Pass |
| 6◇ | Pass | 6♠ (4) | Dbl. |
| 7◇ | Dbl. | Pass | Pass |
| Pass | | | |

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

1—One of Lieut. Carter's experimental two-bids to prevent a spade lead at an eventual game or six diamond contract.
2—Shouting to partner that two spades was a camouflage bid.
3—Nobody home.
4—Sad, but true.

West led the club Ace, East trumping the second club lead and collecting a spade trick.

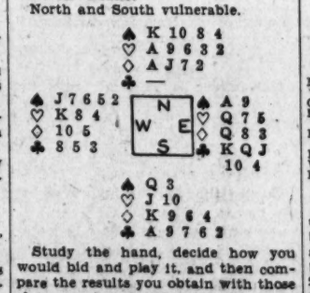
Down 1,000—only a swing of 2,400 points!

Strange as it may seem, none of the rules outlined above were violated.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

North—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

BONDS AND PUBLIC WORKS.

Secretary Mills, in his radio address last night, called attention to the fact that the scheme to issue bonds to pay for public improvements has already been used by many States with disastrous result. Instead of easing the burdens upon taxpayers, this scheme has merely created new obligations. Without indulging in any partisanship, Mr. Mills struck a powerful blow at the movement on Capitol Hill to issue bonds to cover the expenses of public improvements during the depression.

Business corporations frequently issue bonds to finance improvements or expand their plants. Profits from the investment are used to retire the bonds as they become due. It is argued that the Government should likewise spread the cost of permanent improvements over a number of years by financing them with bonds instead of from tax receipts. Secretary Mills exposes the fallacy of this argument. Capital improvements made by the Government are usually liabilities. Instead of adding to the Government's income they cost more for upkeep and depreciation.

National pride approves of the construction of Government buildings of a much finer type than would be erected for commercial use. These public buildings are costly to maintain. For example, the buildings completed up to January 1 in the present building program have cost $1,130,000 in running expenses. Quarters formerly leased for the same purposes cost only $475,000. In most instances the construction of a Government building does not yield revenue. The issuance of bonds to pay for nonproductive enterprises is fundamentally unsound.

Nearly every State and local government has been deceived by the false economists and financiers who have represented public improvements of all kinds as profitable investments. As a result, says Secretary Mills, "our States and municipalities have piled up a mountain of additional debt in the course of the last 12 years, amounting to nearly $10,000,000,000, under which the unfortunate taxpayer is struggling today, and which in many cases has brought the communities to the verge of bankruptcy."

The budget can not be balanced by such tactics. It would be just as logical to set the appropriation for the Army outside of the budget. It is a dangerous practice to place any type of expenditure outside of the budget. That policy would be an invitation to the present Congress to squander millions of dollars at the expense of future taxpayers. When the budget is balanced, it should be balanced honestly, leaving no loopholes for running into debt.

SYRIAN INDEPENDENCE.

At the last assembly of the League of Nations Great Britain surrendered its mandate over Irak and a treaty of alliance between the two countries is now in effect. Senator Berenger has indicated that France is preparing to act in similar fashion toward Syria. The immediate independence of Syria, however, has met with a number of obstacles. According to the French Journal the British had the good fortune or ability to institute a single monarchic regime, which, though it did not always cooperate as it might, at least established an effective power with which the British could negotiate.

Syria has no ruler who can be compared with King Feisal. The country is, furthermore, made up of a number of provinces with differing needs and marked rivalries. The French commissioner, M. Ponsot, set up a constitutional government at Damascus, but the elections, according to French reports, showed that only French dominance restrained conflicting ambitions.

When the mandate is surrendered it is expected that a treaty will be entered into similar to the one which Great Britain made with Irak. Such an agreement presupposes a Syrian government capable of protecting property and maintaining order. It is necessary, therefore, to take some precautions before delivering entire authority to a new regime. Fortunately international difficulties have, for the most part, been smoothed out. An accord recently reached with Turkey provides for the exchange of property and a satisfactory regime with regard to the railroads. The settling of these important matters will now permit attention to be focused on the internal problems affecting Syrian enfranchisement.

GORING THE WRONG OX.

Senator Tydings, of Maryland, deserves commendation for his movement to compel the Government to live within its income, but the method by which he chooses to promote that objective is impracticable. Congress might save $492,000,000 in the 1934 budget without much difficulty, if the cuts were judiciously made. But any attempt to squeeze that much economy from the appropriation bills for the governmental departments, without regard to the object of expenditure, would be absurd.

Congress should direct its efforts toward the elimination of extravagance rather than destruction of agencies that serve the people. The resolution introduced by the senator from Maryland seems to make no distinction between doles and the expenses of essential agencies.

How could the Senate cut into the $1,000,000,000 that is paid for the benefit of veterans without substantial changes in the law which requires the payment of doles to ex-soldiers who suffered no injury or ill effect from their war service? The debate on Senator Tydings' resolution suggests that this major waste would be ignored, and efforts to save nearly half a billion dollars would be concentrated upon indispensable agencies, which would be wiped out entirely under the plan proposed.

If Senator Tydings could induce his colleagues to carry out their promise of drastic economies by reducing doles to veterans who are not entitled to them, by reducing interest on the public debt through a sound fiscal policy, by withdrawing the Government from unwise business ventures, and by reducing the volume of public construction during this emergency period, he would accomplish a notable service. But the Government service ought not to be annihilated in the name of economy. The normal civil running expenses of the Government amount to only about $500,000,000. If Mr. Tydings' proposed savings were applied to these agencies, the chief remaining business of the civil departments would be the distribution of doles.

Considerable savings can be made in the departments, as President Hoover and the House appropriations committee have illustrated. But these are small in comparison with the major points of extravagance in the budget. The first step toward reducing the cost of bureaus and commissions was taken by President Hoover in his reorganization plan. But the Democrats have decided to upset this retrenchment program. The public will not be impressed by grandiose schemes to save hundreds of millions by impairment of the Government service when the only practicable plan for retrenchment of this kind has been rejected.

TECHNOCRACY REPUDIATED.

Genuine engineers turn thumbs down on the proposed reign of engineers as envisaged by the technocrats. The American Engineering Council, which is the foremost body representing that profession, wants it understood that it has no sympathy with the technocracy fetish. It vigorously denies that the statements of the technocrats represent responsible engineering thought.

According to the Council the data and statistics brought forward by the technocrats are open to question. Some findings of this group have been discredited or disproved by other investigators. Engineers who are thoroughly acquainted with the problems of increasing productivity through the use of machines resent the sudden development of a fantastic creed in the name of engineering.

The technocracy fad gained a hold on the popular imagination only because of a dearth of constructive ideas on economic recovery. It makes use of catch phrases and superficial facts in an attempt to justify destruction of the system under which civilization has been developed, whereby man has climbed to the highest standards of living he has ever reached. But it has nothing to offer. The technocrats have merely misstated a problem.

The world is not looking for visionaries. All countries have had enough of quack remedies and fake theories. They are looking for safety, not for another stretch of insanity. The technocracy bubble promises to be as ephemeral as other panaceas for hard times have been. Next year technocracy may be as dead as peewee golf.

HITLERISM AGAIN.

Elections were held on Sunday in Lippe, the smallest German state, and the National Socialists increased their seats in the diet from one to eight as the result of an intensive campaign by Hitler and his most effective party leaders. The result once more creates political uncertainty in a situation that appeared to be gaining stability under the firm rule of Chancellor von Schleicher. The importance given the contest in this tiny state seems exaggerated, but that it has restored the confidence of the Nazi leader there can be no question.

In some quarters it is felt that a compromise may be reached before the meeting of the Reichstag on January 24 which will avoid a new parliamentary conflict. The proposal is made that Gregor Strasser, former organizer of the National Socialists, be appointed vice chancellor with the approval of Hitler, though the Lippe victory may so encourage him that he will maintain his previous attitude of refusing cabinet participation for his party in any minor role. Party conferences are endeavoring to find a solution of a situation that has become once more extremely complex.

Chancellor von Schleicher still holds his emergency power to dissolve the Reichstag if he should fail to effect a combination which will insure his cabinet against a vote of lack of confidence. Undoubtedly that authority will be used next week unless in the meantime some agreement can be reached with the National Socialists. There were many evidences that the regime of Von Schleicher was favorably received by a long harassed people, and it must be very disturbing to have Hitlerism again thrust to the fore.

The first general to occupy the German chancellorship in many years has surprised his countrymen and the world by his moderation and subordination of militaristic gestures to the announcement of policies for economic rehabilitation as his first concern. The holiday truce which he secured without coming to a clash with the Reichstag was a preliminary victory, but it could only be considered a political armistice. It was realized that when the legislative body met again the oft-repeated issue of government support would have to be met by this cabinet as it had been by others.

The latest indication of renewed Hitler strength complicates the situation anew. It would be a welcome solution if the National Socialists would accept participation in the government as at present organized, and permit the country to attend to business without further party distractions.

MINA VAN WINKLE.

Ill health and death have cut short the brilliant career of Mrs. Mina Van Winkle, whose orignal work in Washington for the prevention of crime and the rescue of women and children from criminal lives attracted worldwide attention. Mrs. Van Winkle gave her life and her liberal means to this branch of sociology. With untiring devotion she labored in sordid surroundings, among those whose lives seemed to be beyond hope, and the system gradually developed by her became the standard which has been adopted by police departments here and abroad. Mrs. Van Winkle was president of the International Association of Policewomen, wielding an ever-widening influence up to the time when failing health forced her retirement.

Statistics, of course, can not show how much good is accomplished by prevention of crime and by turning wayward youth from the road that leads to crime. But there is an unwritten record which stands forever to the credit of Mina Van Winkle.

"If anybody feels the necessity of assassinating me", says Yukio Ozaki, Japanese political leader, "I hope he will do so when I am making a vigorous speech on the national policy platform of the Diet." If he speaks on that subject like most American politicians, that's when it's likely to happen.

Senator Tydings proposes to lop off $492,000,000 from essential Federal services that cost $500,000,000 a year. Why does he insist upon squandering $8,000,000?

"There must be an end to sectional jealousy and purely selfish demands," says Jim Farley. He hasn't seen anything yet!

The Marines have safely returned from Nicaragua and will now face the terrors of the congressional guillotine.

Little Miss Wine peeks out from the Senate beer bill, but her leer is only 3.5 per cent alcoholic.

The Senate may be bankrupt as a legislative body, but as a burlesque it has its good points.

A MONUMENT TO McGUFFEY

From the Illinois State Register.

Glimpsing through the State Register for 1868 the other day we came across an item which recorded the adoption of the McGuffey Readers in the Springfield public schools. As we recall it, these famous readers were retained in the schools here until the late nineties and possibly a few years later. In any event, they are held in affectionate memory by whole generations of former school children, although the younger element today knows almost nothing about them, due to the vast changes which have occurred in the system of elementary education in the last quarter century.

Now, we read, Dr. William Holmes McGuffey, the noted American educator who was the author of this famous series, is to have a monument at Miami University, where a number of the books were prepared. Lorado Taft has been chosen as the sculptor of the proposed bust of Dr. McGuffey, the design for which includes a group of typical school children of the earlier period, reading from a book, at the foot of the supporting column. It is said that a subscription campaign for this statue has been in progress for some time.

The first McGuffey Readers made their appearance in 1836, a series of six being published a few years later. They were revised five times, the last revision being copyrighted in 1901. Up until a few years ago they were still being sold in certain sections of the country, but the main period of their popular use extended from the time of Martin Van Buren down to the Roosevelt administration. In that 60-year period they attained sales in this country exceeded only by the Bible. One estimate was that 150,000,000 had been sold since they became standard readers in the school.

McGuffey's Readers went far beyond the teaching of children to read. They inculcated in pleasant fashion a wide variety of lessons in character building—relating to piety, obedience, truthfulness, industry, kindness, integrity, and general excellence of deportment. Through the medium of stories, illustrated with woodcuts, the virtues of right thoughts and right living were filtered into the minds of the younger hopefuls, with a lasting influence for good.

In the later readers, for older pupils, the moralizing was less evident. The object was to provide good reading matter and to elevate reading as an art.

What's a Signature Worth?

Veterans and Taxpayers.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

About 1,600,000 veterans and their dependents drew allowances from the Government in the last fiscal year, an increase of about 50 per cent since June, 1930. At the close of the last fiscal year expenditures for World War veterans totaled $6,318,000,000. The veterans must receive full justice at the hands of a grateful Government. But the mounting costs of this care suggest the need for intelligent, discriminating economy in the interest of the heavily laden taxpayers.

CONFIDENCE.

Hold your faith in what is best!
Never let it get away.
Be you watchful ever, lest
It escape you, as it may.
'Tis an easy thing to speak
Bitter words of broken men,
But who still befriends the weak
May restore their strength again.

In these times when all are tried
Most men do the best they can.
Be not quick to thrust aside
As unworthy any man.
There are many struggling now
On life's stream to keep afloat
And the broken word and vow
Those on shore should scarcely note.

Keep your faith in what is true,
Be not quick to scoff or chide.
What may seem like loss to you
May in time be justified.
Paths are difficult and long,
Days are wearisome and drear.
Keep your faith! If some do wrong
Be not overquick to sneer.

It Is Better to Begin Dollarless Than to Trust in Bonds That Have No Market.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A RECENT satirical novel tells about an army that was slaughtered because a grafting contractor had supplied it with bayonets that bent like tin.

In a case like that, would it be an exaggeration to say that the contractor had done the soldiers more harm than good? Wasn't it his treachery that butchered them? Isn't it clear that their chance of survival would have been greater if they had possessed no bayonets at all and thus had been forced to rely on other weapons?

Today I heard a college junior trying to answer a few questions printed in a newspaper. He had "forgotten" the location of the Suez Canal, and he was astonished by the discovery that England owns India.

He is not stupid. He "passed" in college algebra and trigonometry, and his monthly grades are considerably above the average of his classmates.

Nor is his ignorance exceptional, or peculiar to his environment, for the Carnegie Foundation, having recently completed a study of several score colleges, made public its discovery that the average freshman knows more than the average senior.

Unused knowledge, as you know, is soon forgotten.

The ordinary child in the seventh grade can name the longest river in South America, tell the location of Madagascar and name the chief exports of Siam, but if this knowledge is stored away unused it is forgotten until old age restores the memories of childhood.

The average undergraduate, who has no love of books or thirst for knowledge, knows something of higher mathematics and the 'ologies and little more. And he will forget these things, as he forgot the little knowledge gleaned from earlier textbooks when it had served its immediate purpose.

Why send him to college? It is unfair to him and to his parents.

His parents, as a rule, make sacrifices and assume debts to "give him an education," and the net result of their martyrdom is an injury instead of a benefit.

The youth is tricked and handicapped by weapons that are useless.

His diploma gives him false hopes and a false sense of security. It assures him that he is educated, whereas he is incredibly ignorant and wholly unprepared to render any service for which the world will pay.

Education isn't useless. It is the bread of life to those who hunger for it. But to others it is a fraud that promises security and betrays those who trust it.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Hoover's Arms Embargo Message.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mr. Hoover at length has sent to Congress his message urging that body to make it possible for the United States to place an embargo on arms shipments to foreign belligerents. He may be subject to criticism for his tactics in presenting the proposal, but no objection can be found to the motive behind it. Had the suggestion been made earlier in his administration, there would have been a good chance for its adoption, a hope which now is slight, although the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has reported it favorably. Submitting the plan when his term has virtually run its course, and to a lame duck Congress, no longer submissive to his leadership and preoccupied during its brief session with domestic affairs, smacks of poor generalship. Yet this country could greatly advance the cause of world peace by joining other nations in cutting off the flow of munitions to regions where trouble threatens, either by ratifying the Geneva convention of 1925 or by empowering the President to act in the same direction.

Repeal on Republican Lines.

Minneapolis Journal.

The form of repeal of the eighteenth amendment recommended to the Senate by its Judiciary Committee would, beyond doubt, have much greater chances of adoption by the necessary three-fourths of the States than the flat repeal resolution which Speaker Garner came within six votes of forcing through the House.

The Senate resolution preserves the Constitutional power of the Federal Government to prevent the return of the saloon and provides for the protection of dry States from wet neighbors. It is thus in line with the Republican platform, while the Garner resolution is in line with the Democratic pronouncement. But there are Democrats in both houses who are ready to vote for the former, but not for the latter—enough probably to make the difference between adoption and rejection.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Clagett Defends Farm Allotment Bill—Reasons Why Certain Commodities Are Covered.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post is vigorously opposing the pending farm bill, which is its right, but your editorial of January 14 contained misstatements of facts which, I am sure, could not have been intentional. Metropolitan city newspapers naturally are inclined to be supercritical of farm relief measures because such papers represent almost wholly consuming communities. Nevertheless, a broader and longer view would dictate at least sympathetic consideration, since it hardly can be denied that city prosperity will not return until farmers, the chief buyers of city commodities, have their purchasing power restored.

The farm bill as it passed the House probably is far from perfect, but two of the arguments against it contained in your editorial of this morning are not well founded. Complaint is made that the bill is unfair in that it only applies to wheat, cotton and a few other commodities, instead of to all farm products, and also that it is not in accord with President-elect Roosevelt's preelection policy.

The idea of Mr. Roosevelt, as well as of all advocates of farm relief measures, including the president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Harriman, is that the bill should cover only those commodities in which there is an exportable surplus. For example, Mr. Roosevelt, in announcing his "specifications" for farm relief in his Topeka speech, placed first the idea that "the plan must provide for the producer of staple surplus commodities, such as wheat, cotton, corn (in the form of hogs) and tobacco a tariff benefit over world prices. . . ." Such limitation rested in no manner upon a desire to favor the producers of such staple commodities, but solely upon the well-understood fact that where there is an exportable surplus prices are fixed abroad (at Liverpool in the case of wheat) in competition with world supplies. This is precisely the theory upon which the American protective tariff has been built up. It will be noted, too, that the so-called bounty to wheat, &c., is to be paid only upon the part of the crops domestically consumed.

Your editorial also says that "this scheme" (the House bill) would be financed directly out of the Treasury." This is an error. It would not take a cent out of the Treasury. The bill is perfectly clear that only the money collected from the processors is to be distributed to the farmers.

Perhaps I should add that I have no personal interest whatever in the measure, except the interest of one who is thoroughly convinced that we will have no prosperity until some bill of this sort is adopted and farmers given again an opportunity to get more than the cost of production for their products. The big advantage of this bill, as I see it, is that it gives promise of reducing production, which is the great hope of agriculture.

Cites Mexico's Propaganda Against Evils of Alcohol as Example to Follow.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why shouldn't the United States Government spend something to educate the people on the evil effects of alcohol? This would be the best way to obtain observance and respect for the Constitution.

The government of Mexico shows far more sense in this respect than we do. Their President Rodriguez says: "The policy of the Mexican government has been for some years past to promote temperance by all educational means—lectures, posters, motion pictures and other propaganda." Former President Portes Gil said: "Alcohol is the enemy of the working classes and of the future greatness of Mexico. I look forward to the day when our people shall no longer suffer from them."

Another former president, Calles, said: "Alcohol, enemy of Mexico and all mankind. In every possible way I have advised my people against its use."

These men and the Mexican government have the right idea.

Farm Relief of the Right Sort Badly Needed, Says Marylander.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The farm relief problem as it is being discussed is becoming very tiresome. Why not an honest investigation right out among the farmers? It would then soon be settled. First, if some kind of just relief bill were passed it would be one of the largest factors in bringing about better times. The farmer, when he has money, is the best spender in the world. Today farmers need money to repair barns and houses, and many of them need new buildings. This means nails, roofing material, lumber, bricks, labor, and new machinery. Many are planting crops without fertilizer, farms are being sold for taxes and mortgages, with no hope of ever being able to redeem them. It is sheer shortsightedness in city people to oppose farm relief.

Why Discriminate Against the Onion? Irate Virginia Democrat Wants to Know.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Did the House, in passing the so-called farm parity or relief bill, purposely omit onions from the bill or was it merely an oversight? Those of us who consume peanuts only on rare occasions, but eat onions daily, would like to know why the onion producers have been so completely neglected. The onion is entitled to classification on the farm relief bill along with the peanut.

DAVISON TO TESTIFY IN AIRPORT LEASING

Moffet Also Called; Senate Group Hears Facilities Are "Shocking."

F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for aviation, and Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, will be called before a Senate District subcommittee at 2 p. m. today to tell what they think of the Bingham bill to lease the Washington-Hoover airport site for a municipal airport.

The War and Navy officials were called by Senat. Otis F. Glenn (Republican), Illinois, chairman of the parks and highways subcommittee, after a preponderance of witnesses appearing at yesterday's hearings had favored Gravelly Point as the site. Capt. A. C. Read, U. S. N., will accompany Rear Admiral Moffett before the committee.

Speaking for the bill, Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, president of the National Aeronautic Association, favored leasing the Washington-Hoover site by the director of Public Buildings and Public Parks, and its enlargement by closing Military road and part of the Arlington Experimental farm. By subleasing concessions, the cost eventually could be reduced to $25,000 a year, born by the District, he said.

Mrs. Putnam Is "Shocked."

Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, also spoke for the Washington-Hoover site. She contrasted conditions here with airport facilities at the leading European capitals, and found them "shocking." She said the present airport is inadequate, and only the skill of transport pilots makes safe operation possible.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, said that while the Washington-Hoover site is the only tract immediately available, Gravelly Point should be developed for future use. He suggested several changes in the bill.

Maj. Paul A. Hodgson, acting engineer commissioner, said the District government should not be called on to pay any share of the cost, pointing out that local revenues already are depleted.

Federation Is Represented.

Representing the Federation of Citizens Associations, Edwin S. Hege, pointed out that the federation is on record as favoring the Gravelly Point site. He said it would oppose expenditure of District funds for taking over the Washington-Hoover field.

John S. Wynne, speaking for the Washington Chamber of Commerce, indorsed the Gravelly Point site, but favored the Bingham bill for the immediate development of the Washington-Hoover site. Edwin A. Schmidt, senior engineer of the United States engineer office, testified it would cost more to develop the latter field.

THE PARADINE CASE

By ROBERT HICHENS

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Malcolm Keane, one of England's most celebrated advocates, has been briefed by Sir Simon Flaquer, solicitor, to defend his client, Mrs. Paradine, against a charge of murdering her husband, Col. Paradine.

While Mrs. Paradine is in Halloway Jail awaiting trial, Lord Horfield is appointed judge of the case.

Sir Malcolm and his pretty wife, Gay, who bears a subtle resemblance to Mrs. Paradine, have been happily married for ten years, but the dowager's obsession with the Paradine case is beginning to cast a dark shadow over their happiness. Sir Malcolm finds himself fascinated by the mysterious blonde, whom he passionately desires to save. Subconsciously he is not wholly convinced of her innocence, but he declares emphatically to Sir Simon that he believes her innocent. Sir Malcolm is skeptical about the defense Sir Malcolm has prepared, which is to suggest that the colonel's servant, William Marsh, who had been Paradine's batman in the war, might have had a hand in the murder. Sir Malcolm is afraid of Lord Horfield, who seems to have a streak of cruelty that manifests itself toward women who come up for trial before him.

Lady Horfield, in confidence to Sir Malcolm, expresses her fears for Mrs. Paradine.

Col. Paradine had been blinded in the war and had never seen his beautiful wife, who had been a servant before her marriage. She is a Dane, who had been rescued from a life of degradation by a philanthropic American. After a short period in the United States, she had settled in London to earn her living, and had married the rich Col. Paradine after the war.

Sir Malcolm goes alone to the north of England to look over the Paradine home at Hindley. On his return he invites the Horfields to dinner and the theater, against Gay's wishes. The dinner gages off in a friendly enough spirit. Leaving for the theater Keane takes Lady Horfield in his car and Gay accompanies Lord Horfield, who makes love to her, much to her disgust.

When the Paradine trial opens, Gay goes to it with Judith Flaquer, unknown to Malcolm. Mrs. Paradine is put on the stand and testifies that William Marsh had pursued her with unwelcome attentions and that she had as a last resort complained to the colonel the afternoon before he died. Marsh is called to the stand and gives the lie to Mrs. Paradine, testifying that it was she who pursued him.

He dealt with what he called "the fatuous groping about of the crown to discover an adequate motive for the murder which it was sought to fasten upon the prisoner. He dealt separately with the evidence of the various witnesses, servants and others who had been called to speak to Col. Paradine's fits of temper, and so forth, which had recoiled upon his wife. He put it to the jury, men and women of experience in the traffic of daily life, whether such a murder as was alleged against the prisoner could have taken place with such a motive as the crown had absurdly brought forward at the beginning of their case.

All this was lightly and confidently dealt with. But Keane's manner completely changed to deep gravity when presently he said:

"The other, purely impromptu motive, with which counsel for the crown later made such melodramatic play in his closing speech, what I may call the William Marsh motive, I will deal with later. That is a very different thing. I will now content myself and relieve you, gentlemen and ladies of the jury, of boredom and weariness by brushing aside as utterly unworthy of serious consideration the domestic unhappiness motive which counsel, misreading, as I think, your united intelligence, thought fit to endeavor to interest you in—till he got hold of what he obviously thought something better. Enough of that!"

He made a movement with his right hand as if brushing something away.

Then, changing his manner, he drew a picture of the prisoner's "life of devotion in that house in the north alone with her blinded hero," representing her as passionately attached to her husband and full of a romantic desire to solace his darkness and bring him the happiness that only a woman's love and tenderness can create for a man who had suffered and must suffer to the end of his days. At this point in his speech he used with great effect the personal knowledge of Hindley, which he had gathered when up in the north. With the skill of an accomplished novelist he created for the jury a life in which Mrs. Paradine was the heroine, Col. Paradine the suffering hero. He did not fail to draw the jury's attention to the fact that no witness had been called to prove that Mrs. Paradine had been a neglected or indifferent wife. Even those of the servants who were "vaguely hostile to her" had not dared to perjure themselves by representing her as callous, as a seeker after pleasure. She never absented herself from her husband. Always she was to be found with, or near, him. She bore with his occasional outbursts of temper and moods of despair with devoted resignation and charity.

Mrs. Paradine gradually emerged in his speech as a woman of exceptionally fine character who had dedicated her life to a man whom she loved.

Through all this section of his speech Keane left William Marsh aside, only just mentioning him as one of the household in attendance upon Col. Paradine. He concentrated on Mrs. Paradine and her husband, throwing the high light on them, presenting them in a sort of romantic isolation, linked by a deep affection, though shadowed by the sorrows inevitably caused by the colonel's affliction. And so skillful was his handling of the life up at Hindley that he held the crowd in the court enthralled by it and sent a shock that was unmistakable from one end of the court to the other when, suddenly pulling up, after a brief silence, he said in a low but penetrating voice:

"But this close intimacy which I have ventured to describe to you, ladies and gentlemen, was unfortunately not an intimacy confined to two persons who loved each other. There was a third person included in it, a man of unusual character whom you have seen and heard in this court, the soldier servant of Col. Paradine, the perjured witness, William Marsh, who has blatantly asserted before you his own crime of perjury and who, I venture to say, perjured himself again when he did so."

And he went on to deal scathingly with Marsh's character. He drew him as a dangerous man of intense and furious passions who, having been turned to hatred of women by a disappointment in love when he was young, had for years lived the life of a soured ascetic, "bottling up the violent physical desires which ravaged him and which, having no natural outlet, increased within him like water rising behind a dam until finally they took complete possession of him and drove him to the persecution of Mrs. Paradine which she has reluctantly—very reluctantly—testified to in that box."

He dealt at some length with this, by him assumed, "persecution" of Mrs. Paradine by Marsh, evidently with the intention of hypnotising the jury into the absolute conviction that Mrs. Paradine's testimony as to that matter was true and explained her reluctance to speak of it to her husband by the fact that for years Col. Paradine, deceived as to Marsh's true character, had relied upon him and trusted him absolutely and must be certainly made most unhappy by such a revelation of his treachery and baseness.

"But at last it had come out," he finally said. "This unfortunate lady could no longer endure this continual and loathsome persecution of a frustrated libertine and she went to her husband and told him the whole truth."

"Does a would-be poisoner do that?" he inquired of the jury. "Does such an action commend itself to your intelligence as reasonable and likely on the part of a potential murderess?"

What was it, he asked, that really took place in the house in Eaton square on the day before Col. Paradine's death? Three versions had been placed before the jury, two by the witness, William Marsh; one and only one by the prisoner. William Marsh, in his first version, had sworn that the violent scene in the library had been caused by Mrs. Paradine's having gone to her husband and falsely asserted that he, William Marsh, intended to leave the colonel's service and had come to her and confided this intention to her. Later the prisoner had been put in the box and she had given her version; that she had been at last driven by Marsh's conduct to tell her husband about it and to ask him to dismiss Marsh from his service. Marsh, evidently roused to fury by this exposure of her perfidy to his master, had got up in court and given her the lie, committing thereby the grossest contempt of court that he, counsel, had ever assisted at.

Then a most unusual thing had occurred. William Marsh had been recalled, although after his cross-examination the learned counsel for the crown had not bothered to re-examine him and had been permitted to make a sort of confession to the jury, a thing unprecedented in his, counsel's, experience. And what a confession it had been! An unmanly, repulsive attempt to counter the prisoner's reluctant avowal—how reluctant every one in that court must have noticed!—reluctant avowal of Marsh's pursuit of her by the foul, trumped-up assertion that she had pestered him with her attentions. Stung by the prisoner's admission of the ugly truth, Marsh had thought to defend himself and ruin her by piling perjury on perjury, throwing the surely natural chivalry due from man to woman to the winds and showing himself in his true colors, a coarse, brutal liar, a coward and one treacherous to his trust.

He then dealt with all that had followed after the conclusion of the scene in the library, dwelling specially on Marsh's extraordinary audacity in trying, after what had occurred, to force himself upon the unfortunate colonel, "who only wanted never to be with him again." Even Marsh, himself, though a brazen liar, had been forced to acknowledge that this master's last words to him were, "Get out of my sight!" Did not these words point to the truth of the prisoner's account of what had happened? Were they not a convincing proof that her version was the true one?

He then examined minutely the incidents already revealed to the jury and the conduct, spoken to, of the protagonists in "this extraordinary drama." And here he sprung a sensational surprise upon the jury and all those in court.

"When I first took up this case," he said, "more than one theory presented itself to my mind. One was this: that the death of Col. Paradine was an assisted suicide, not an actual murder, not a murder, that is, in the ordinary sense of that word."

He then outlined his reasons for thinking that that might have been possible, considering the colonel's misery caused by his blindness and consequent growing indifference to life. Without mentioning Marsh by name, he suggested that a suicide, in the circumstances, probably would have been very difficult, if not impossible, without the help of some one, and that it had come into his mind that the colonel might have prevailed upon one deeply devoted to him, not necessarily a woman, to help him to get out of life.

"The course events have taken, however," he continued, "have convinced me that that was not what occurred. In my view this is undoubtedly a case of deliberate murder. But I contend that there is absolutely no proof that it was committed by the prisoner. I do not accuse directly any one else of it, but let us see, examining the facts without passion, whether any one besides the prisoner could have obtained access to the Burgundy in which it is as certain as anything can be that the poison which killed Col. Paradine was placed. Three persons besides the prisoner could have had access to that wine. One was the butler who poured it out and placed the glass on the colonel's night table; another was the colonel himself; a third was the prisoner, and a fourth was"—he paused, then added—"the perjured witness, William Marsh."

He then dismissed the butler from his purview, observing that he could have had absolutely no motive in committing the crime. He dismissed Col. Paradine, who might have had a motive in taking his own life and who, indeed, had that very day received a terrible blow to his pride and faith, but who could hardly have managed to poison the wine without some assistance from outside.

"Two persons remain, the prisoner and William Marsh."

Keane then dealt with the incidents sworn to, showing that Marsh, "for some inexplicable reason," hung about on the landing outside the colonel's door after he had been ordered to go away. The colonel had left his room and had gone to the lavatory. For a short time his bedroom was left empty, the glass of Burgundy presumably in it. During part of that time William Marsh was up there on the first floor and Mrs. Paradine was shut up in her bedroom; during part of it Mrs. Paradine was there alone, except for the colonel's presence, locked up in the lavatory. There was no evidence as to how long the colonel remained in the lavatory. Who entered the colonel's bedroom during that short space of time and introduced the poison that undoubtedly killed him into the wine?

"Nobody knows!" said Keane, slowly and impressively. "Or ever will know for certain. For there is no proof whatever of any one having entered that room. The fact is that there were two persons who could have entered it—had they so desired. One is the prisoner, the other is William Marsh. Which of these two persons had the most cogent motive for committing the crime?

"You, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, have heard the evidence and have seen and therefore are able to judge of the characters of the witnesses. You have had before you the prisoner, whose evidence was not upset in cross-examination, and William Marsh, who almost ardently gave testimony that he was a liar and therefore unworthy of trust. And now I have nearly done, but there are just one or two points I should like to deal with if you will bear with me for a few minutes more."

Couple Wed Despite Wreck and Pursuit

Man and Girl Walk Into Town After Crash of Their Auto.

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 16.—Neither an automobile wreck nor the pursuit of an irate father, the sheriff and State police could prevent the marriage of a young Upshur couple early today.

Albert Crites, 26, of Rock Cave, and Miss Grace Virginia Wimer, 17, of Crawford, started out to attend a church service at Crawford last night, but decided to go on to Buckhannon and be married. En route, their car was wrecked in a collision with another. Climbing out of the wreckage, the couple walked in to Buckhannon.

Within the hour, Lamon Wimer, father of the girl, arrived at Buckhannon and routed Sheriff Morgan Bailey out of bed to search for the couple. It was discovered the young couple a few minutes previously had aroused the county clerk, Allen B. Cutright, obtained a marriage license and had been married at the Oakland, Md., Baptist Church by the Rev. W. H. Barlow, pastor.

EXTENSION OF TRAIN SURCHARGE FOUGHT

Virginia Commission Thinks Action Would Do More Harm Than Good.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—An argument vigorously opposing the extension of the prevailing 15 per cent "depression surcharge" on freight rates, due to expire March 31, has been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Virginia Corporation Commission.

The Virginia commission holds that a continuation of the surcharge will do the carriers more harm than good, and that there is no economic justification for permitting the cost of rail transportation to remain out of its fair relation to other costs at this time.

The Virginia briefs urged that in the event the period is prolonged, that the extension be made for a specific period, and that the pooling plan be continued.

$150,000 Granted For Drug Study

Virginia University Experiments on Morphine Will Be Expanded.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 16.—For further experimentation in removing the habit-forming properties of morphine, $150,000 has been granted for the study of this problem, begun at the University of Virginia three years ago under the direction of Dr. Lyndon F Small.

The money was contributed by the Rockefeller Institute, and administered by the National Research Association, to be used in the chemical work here and at the University of Michigan, where the pharmacology of the drug is being started.

According to Dr. Small, the money will be used to maintain the work for three additional years, starting at the beginning of this year. There are 12 salaried chemist working day and night in the laboratories of the university, and a number of graduate students also are engaged in the research.

Survivors of Cox Lose Writ Plea

Pay in Death of Warden Is Denied by Virginia Supreme Court.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The State supreme court today refused a writ of error to Lucille Chapman Cox and other dependents of J. L. Cox, State game warden, from a decision of the State industrial commission refusing to award compensation fh their favor for the death of Mr. Cox.

Defendants in the case were the State commission of game and inland fisheries and the board of supervisors of Wise County and others.

The record showed that Cox was shot to death. The claimants contended that the game warden was investigating the dynamiting of fish at the time he was killed and that therefore his death was in the line of duty. The commission held, however, that the dispute which led to the killing was caused by the warden's order to a man to remove his automobile from the highway, a matter not connected with Cox's official duty.

A. N. PEYTON ESTATE VALUED AT $90,000

Will of Late Charlottesville Man Is Admitted for Probation.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 16.—The will of A. Newman Peyton, for many years division claim agent for the Southern Railway and proprietor of the Queen Charlotte Hotel, has been admitted to probate in the corporation court. It disposes of an estate valued at approximately $90,000. Two of his sons, Col. Philip B. Peyton and Maj. James W. Peyton, and the Peoples National Bank, this city, are named as executors.

The will directs that the estate, which includes properties in the city and at the university be held intact and managed for a period of three years after Mr. Peyton's death.

The Queen Charlotte Hotel, located near Union Station, on West Main street, converging point of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Southern Railways, is left to Col. Philip B. Peyton, of Washington, D. C., and Walter W. Peyton, of Topeka, Kans., and their heirs.

Another son, Maj. James F. Peyton, U. S. A., now stationed at La Jolla, Calif., will receive the large brick building at the entrance to the university grounds. On the first floor are two spacious storerooms, one occupied by the clothing firm of Stevens & Shepherd and the other by Mrs. Turnage's dining room.

Several years ago Mr. Peyton gave to his only daughter, Elizabeth, wife of John Scott Wendt, of Sewickley, Pa., a residence at the university which she later sold to Mrs. E. M. Page. In addition to this, Mrs. Wendt is left a one-third share in the residue of the estate.

Mr. Peyton was a native of Orange County, son of the late William S. Peyton, a prominent resident of Rapidan, and was 82 years old. In early life he entered the employ of the Southern Railway and for many years was law agent for that company. He had made his home here for 45 years. He married Miss Alice Milan, of Nashville, Tenn., who died about 35 years ago.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

STATIONS continue to announce that they are operating "by authority of the Federal Radio Commission." As previously set forth in these columns, there may have been some justification for this announcement when the Radio Commission took over the reins several years ago.

If the necessity for the announcement ever existed, it has long since passed, and the announcement is now just that much free advertising for the Radio Commission. Everyone knows if a radio station is operated without the authority of the Federal Radio Commission its operators would be subject to a heavy fine or imprisonment.

The Pennsylvania Railroad might just as well be obliged to print on all its literature that it operates by authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Also other Government bureaus might, as the Radio Commission does, compel commercial concerns to give them what is known in the news photography world as a "credit line." It is, therefore, about time for the Federal Radio Commission to cease annoying listeners with the tiresome repetition.

The announcement "This station is operating by authority of the Federal Radio Commission" should go the way of "With the special permission of the copyright owners," which recently was relegated to the trash heap.

HOW do the Revelers, veteran male quartet, learn new songs and master Frank Black's skillful arrangements? It is a rather strange procedure, at least to the casual observer.

Black makes the arrangements in private and then summons the members of the quartet to his office. They saunter in, one by one, Elliott Shaw, the barytone; Wilfred Glenn, bass; Lewis James, second tenor, and, finally, James Melton, top tenor.

Then Frank Black arrives with the sheets of music; gives each man his sheet, and sits down to his desk. After much urging he induces the others to draw up chairs and pay attention, as he reads off the lyrics and each man writes down his own part. This procedure is interrupted frequently, usually by Jimmy Melton, as he thinks up another gag.

When this is concluded, Black saunters over to the piano where he begins playing the melody over and over. The songsters chatter away. Finally one separates himself from the group and begins humming the tune. Another joins him at the piano and another, until finally all four are gathered informally around Black and are humming the music.

Next the words creep in. This goes on until Black is satisfied that his charges know the new piece. Then he gives them detailed instructions, holds a final dress rehearsal and calls it a day.

The song is ready for the radio audience.

The Five Star Theater audience will hear the voice of Sigrid Onegin, contralto, with Joseph Bonime's Symphony Orchestra over WJSV at 10 o'clock tonight.

Mme. Onegin will sing "O Don Fatale," from Verdi's "Don Carlos," "Ehre Gottes aus de Natur," Beethoven, and "Zu Lautebach" (German folk song). Bonime will conduct the overture to "Der Freischutz" (Von Weber) and "Capriccio Italien," Tschaikowsky.

A GREAT radio series is just ahead for the Wagnerians. A presentation is go be given by the Metropolitan Opera Company of portions of all four operas of "Der Ring des Nibelungen" in the following order:

"Rheingold," January 27; "Die Walkure," February 2; "Siegfried," February 9; "Gotterdammerung," February 17.

In addition, "Tannhauser" will be broadcast February 22 and "Tristan und Isolde," March 3.

---

It never rains but that it pours. In addition to our receiving WJZ programs over WMAL, the Federal Radio Commission has authorized WJZ to increase its power from 30,000 to 50,000 watts. This means that Washington ought to get WJZ, whose transmitter is located at Bound Brook, N. J., better than ever before.

WJZ comes in fairly well on 30,000 watts, but with the additional 20,000 watts, the National Capital should be within its reliable service range day and night.

Babe Ruth, home-run king of American baseball, and a name that means news throughout the country, will be presented by Edwin C. Hill on January 27 in the first broadcast of "The Inside Story of Names That Make News," the new series of Friday night programs which Hill will begin on that date.

As a congressman from the First district of Philadelphia Beck represents the place in which Franklin gained his fame, although the scientist, editor, author and diplomat was born in Boston in 1706.

Dr. Doolittle, the creation of Hugh Lofting, will step from the pages of "The Story of Dr. Doolittle" to live before the microphone at Station WJZ at 5:15 o'clock this afternoon. The character was invented by Lofting, an officer in the Irish Guards on the Western Front, as a subject for letters to his children, because he couldn't write to them about the war. The period will be heard every Tuesday and Thursday at the same hour.

FRANK CRUMIT and Julia Sanderson estimate that they have sung more than 3,500 different songs since inaugurating their plantation programs several years ago. Most of the numbers come from the Crumit collection, which is one of the most complete records of American popular tunes, both old and new, in America.

$250,000 Balm Suit Actress Filed Dropped

West Chester, Pa., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The Chester County Court today dismissed a $250,000 alienation suit filed by Judith Vosselli Lloyd, stage and screen actress, against Mrs. Mary Penrose Gilford Lloyd, of West Chester and New York.

The action was dismissed because the actress, now said to be in Hollywood, failed to deposit $400 with the court to insure costs if she lost the case. The actress charged the former Mrs. Gilford "unlawfully appropriated John Eshelman Lloyd to herself."

Capital Boy Cast In Poe Play Lead

Eugene Stevens Is Picked at Charlottesville as Star in "Politian."

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 16.—Eugene Stevens, of Washington, D. C., will play the title role of "Politian" in the world premier of Edgar Allan Poe's only drama, which will be presented on Thursday on the 124th anniversary of the poet's birth.

"Politian" will be given its first staging by the Virginia Players of the University of Virginia under the direction of H. R. Pratt, head of the school of dramatic art. Prof. Pratt is being assisted by James Southall Wilson, Poe professor of English literature. Roger Boyle, instructor in dramatics, has charge of the staging.

Poe wrote "Politian" just 100 years ago, but it has never been put on the stage. Only fragments of it were ever published until a few years ago, when the complete text was printed in a limited edition.

Nation Is Marking Time, Rail Chief Tells Hoover

(Associated Press.)

Paul Shoup, chairman of the board of the Southern Pacific Railroad, said yesterday he had told President Hoover he believed the country was "marking time" economically, with the business trend going neither up nor down.

Leaving the White House, Shoup said he had informed Mr. Hoover he felt this condition would continue until some of the Nation's problems, such as balancing the budget and straightening the war debt tangle, had been accomplished.

ROOSEVELT HOPES TO STOP CENTRAL FIVE TODAY

On the SIDELINES
By Edward J. Neil

THE value of personality at the head of university athletic departments never was more forcefully demonstrated than in the healing of the 6-year-old Harvard-Princeton breach that ruptured, apparently forever, the ancient and honorable "Big Three."

And more clearly than ever does this resumption of a time-honored football relationship point out to other universities the need for athletic heads who are more than football coaches or former athletic stars.

The representative of a big university, trusted today with the job of selling the athletics of his school to other universities and the public, must in these parlous times be not only a smooth, ingratiating diplomat, but a colorful personality as well, a man who knows newspapermen and is liked by them, a man who can move beyond the field of sport and make friends and supporters for his school, a supersalesman.

CROWLEY THE TYPE.

Because Fordham University wanted a man of that type it replaced Maj. Frank Cavanaugh with "Sleepy" Jim Crowley, a personable young man whom Notre Dame wise men insist comes closest of all Knute Rockne's graduates to mirroring the masterful, picturesque qualities of the great Dane.

Fordham needed Crowley to compete with Columbia's suave Lou Little, Manhattan's Chick Meehan and a host of others in the Eastern sector, including the two men who breached the Harvard-Princeton gap, Bill Bingham and Herbert Orrin "Fritz" Crisler.

For years now, Bingham has been making friends for Harvard where friend never grew before. And in the short year that Crisler has been in charge at Nassau, the effect of his personality, leadership and coaching ability on the previously lackadaisical attitude of the press and public toward Princeton affairs has been little short of revolutionary.

IT'S "BIG FOUR" NOW.

So it was that with Bingham and Crisler in the driving seats, and economic needs calling for such a spectacle, a resumption of Harvard-Princeton football relations was inevitable.

Most interesting point in the new picture, of course, is the inclusion of Dartmouth on the schedules of the old "Big Three," automatically bringing into being a "Big Four."

For many long years the Indians from the Hanover hills have stood on the edge of the "Big Three" circle, looking in, getting into the schedules of Harvard and Yale, but never quite reaching the pinnacle they shared in the history of New England football. Finally they have achieved equality.

A SERIOUS LOT.

The new seriousness with which football coaches view themselves was demonstrated to perfection at the recent annual meetings in New York.

Photographers lined up Reggie Root, Lou Little and Fritz Crisler before a blackboard for a picture of Crisler diagramming a play for his contemporaries.

Fritz quickly set down the crosses for the line, the backs, and then roughly drew lines indicating the courses of the backs in a sort of comic opera play through right tackle. On the diagram he pulled two men out of the left side of the line to help with the interference. Carelessly he indicated that both went inside the right tackle.

A coach from the Midwest studied the diagram intently as the cameraman set up his equipment. Before the picture could be taken, he raised his hand and stopped the proceedings.

"Fritz," he said seriously, "hadn't you better send one of those fellows outside the tackle? That play'd never go that way."

Bethesda-C. C. Tops County School Fives

Leading the scramble for Montgomery County's scholastic court title with two victories and no defeats, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School has an opportunity to increase its lead Friday when it meets Poolesville High School on the latter's court. The game will be Poolesville's first in the championship race.

Takoma, second with one victory and no defeats, journeys to Damascus for another league tilt the same day. The game also marks the host quintet's debut in the series. Gaithersburg and Sherwood make their bow in the chase with a game at Sherwood, also Friday.

Other games scheduled this week for Montgomery County teams bring Emerson to Bethesda-Chevy Chase and Hyattsville to Takoma-Silver Spring tomorrow. Saturday Takoma goes to Frederick for a tiff with the Maryland State School for Deaf. It will be played at night.

Briton's Test In U. S. Ring Negative

Watson Pummeled by 3 Preliminary Boys in Gym Session.

Workout Ordered by Commission Before Chocolate Bout.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, JAN 16 (A.P.).—The formal unveiling of Seaman Tom Watson, British featherweight champion, for the solemn purpose of determining how much he can fight, took place today in the smoky confines of the St. Nicholas gym with a variety of results, most of them negative.

It was the order of the New York State Athletic Commission that Watson, seaman in his majesty's navy, veteran of 200 battles on land and sea, should be tested before being allowed to engage Kid Chocolate, recognized here as the featherweight champion, in a title duel at Madison Square Garden January 27.

The commission had in mind a previous unfortunate experience with a British champion, Elky Clark, who came over here in 1926, met Fidel Labarba in his first match, and was floored by the first punch of the match, a stiff left jab to the nose.

Held Exhibition Before Official Jury.

So today three rough, tough young preliminary boys, Jerry Mazza, Joe Corforti and Charley Bedami, were tossed recklessly at the seaman for two rounds each before a couple of hundred paid customers, a jury composed of Deputy Commissioners Skilling, Goodman and O'...ell, managers, sweaty fighters, Garden officials and newspapermen.

The official jury will not report on Watson's qualifications until the regular weekly meeting of the commission tomorrow, but the rest of the party, in inverse proportion to casual or official relationship with the Garden, expressed vigorous opinions on the spot.

The consensus was that the seaman can't fight much, though it was generally agreed, too, that the odds today were all against him.

Pummeled by Three Preliminary Boys.

Mazza easily outboxed the anxious Englishman, outpunching him in close, stabbing him easily with lefts, while Comforti, the second opponent, gave Watson a fine going over for a round and then bumped into a right cross that split his lips. Bedami, a squat fellow with a left hook similar to Chocolate's, swept that hand at will into the seaman's body, making him look very bad indeed.

By the time the three eager youngsters had finished with the Briton, the "aitches" were popping all over the place. Watson's British manager, John Mortimer, denounced the scene as an "horrible h'injustice."

Watson, high-strung and apparently aware of the hostility evinced by the cohorts of fighters who wanted the chocolate plum themselves, almost wept when he was finished. He realized that he hadn't won a round from the preliminary boys, all of whom have fine records among the youngsters of the ring.

"Why," he demanded in his cockney accident, "do I have to be blamed for what some other fighter did before me? My fight is with Chocolate. I am all unstrung."

Watson, 24 years old, looks much older. He won the British championship from Nel Tarleton last November after holding the lightweight championship of the British army and navy in 1928 and 1930. He is a counter fighter, hits fairly hard with his right hand apparently, but is woefully deficient in the art of defense against jabs and hooks.

It is considered a certainty, however, that the official jury will stamp its approval on Watson tomotrrow.

25 Army Gridmen Awarded Letters

Broshous, Drop-Kick Specialist, Among Those to Get Monograms.

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Twenty-five members of the 1932 Army Football Team, which lost only to Pittsburgh and Notre Dame and defeated Navy, today were among the 103 cadets at the Military Academy awarded letters, monograms and numerals for participation in football, soccer, cross-country and polo.

The 24 members of the team who played in the Navy game also received gold star awards, an old custom revived with the official resumption of Army-Navy athletic relations.

In addition to the major "A's" awarded in football, eight players received academy monograms for football activities. Among them was Charles R. Broshous, the little chap who has been the Army's drop-kick specialist for three years.

The following were awarded "A's" in football:

John G. Armstrong, Whitestone, N. Y.; Richard T. King, Georgetown, S. C.; Lawrence J. Lincoln, Harbor Beach, Mich.; Milton F. Summerfelt, Benton Harbor, Mich.; Travis T. Brown, Auburn, Ala.; Harvey J. Jablonsky, Clarion, Mo.; Roland A. Elliott, Bethlehem, Pa.; Roy T. Evans, Pawtucket, R. I.; Kenneth D. Fields, Elkhart, Ind.; William J. ## Saltzgaver Sent Back by Yankees

Depend on Lazzeri, Farrell at Second as Rookie Goes to Newark.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Otto (Jack) Saltzgaver, second baseman who finished the 1932 season with the Newark Internationals after a sensational start as a Yankee freshman, will have to wait at least another season before he gets his next chance with the world champions.

The Yankees today announced Saltzgaver's return to Newark for another season, on option. He will go South with the No. 1 unit of the Yankees' farm system.

Saltzgaver started the 1932 season as the Yankees' regular second baseman, making a good impression at the outset. His hitting slumped, however, and he gave way to Tony Lazzeri's comeback. The former St. Paul star then played 109 games with Newark, batting .316, and was recalled by the headquarters club.

Apparently Manager Joe McCarthy and the Yankee board of strategy is convicted the champions can worry along another season with Lazzeri at second base and Eddie Farrell, the Binghamton (N. Y.) dentist, ready to step in, if and when an emergency arises.

FIGHT PRICES SLASHED BY GARDEN

Schaaf-Carnera Clash With Seats at $3.30 to 50 Cents.

By HENRY McLEMORE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—Boxing's olden golden era—the period of Tex Rickard, $50 tops and $1,000,000 gates—was ended officially today when Madison Square Garden announced its new scale of prices. Beginning with the Billy Petrolle- Bep Van Klaveren bout Friday night, the best ringside seat in the Garden will be available for $3.50. Prices will be scaled down to a mere 55 cents in the gallery, less than is charged by the average neighborhood movie theater.

The low prices, according to President William F. Carey, will hold for all fights excepting those involving world championships. This means that Ernie Schaaf and Primo Carnera, when they meet next month to determine a challenger for Jack Sharkey's heavyweight title, will labor under the new tariff. Never in the modern history of the fight game has a battle between two such important heavyweights been staged at such a scale of prices.

Cut to Be Felt in Other Cities.

The effect of the cut in prices is certain to be felt in all those cities where there is boxing, for the Garden is the most important fight center of them all, and if the Garden's bouts are worth but $3.30 ringside, outside promoters will hesitate to place a higher tariff on their shows.

The Garden's price slash sounded the death knell for hugh purses and guarantees. With such low tops it will be impossible for promoters, no matter how large the crowd, to pay off such wages as our leading fighters are accustomed to demanding.

The Garden didn't say so, but two facts undoubtedly played a large part in bringing about the slash. Fact No. 1 is that hockey, losing money at the start of the season, gained a new lease on life by a price cut. Since the hockey moguls chopped a dollar off the cost of seats, attendance has picked up nearly 30 per cent, and receipts nearly 10 per cent.

Empty Seats Hastened More.

Fact No. 2 is the tremendous number of empty seats which greeted Ben Jeby and Frankie Battaglia Friday night when they stepped in the Garden ring to fight it out for the middleweight championship of the world. Despite the fact that an important title was involved, nearly two-thirds of the Garden's 20,000 seats were empty.

Just what the Garden will charge for championship bouts is not known. It's certain, however, that the prices won't be advanced very much. It would not be at all surprising to see Sharkey defend his title this summer with the best seats around $10.

FOX MANAGER NOTE.

The manager of the Fox basket ball team has been asked to come to the Y. M. C. A. before 4 o'clock this afternoon to fill the berth open in the 130-pound league. See Fred Carpenter or call National 8250.

Sarazen Says No. 1 Iron Is Hardest

Does Not Trust Club Himself, Preferring the Spoon.

145-Yard Pitch Is the Most Difficult for Average Golfer.

(This is the second of a series of three interviews with Gene Sarazen on golf and golfers.)

By BRIAN BELL.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Gene Sarazen at times can make any shot with a golf club, but he will tell you, if you can catch him in a hospital where he cannot get away, that some shots are much harder than others.

"What is the hardest shot in golf?" he was asked.

"The No. 1, or driving iron for the crack player. The average player should not even carry this club. For even ranking players, the driving iron is frequently a gamble, and many of us have found after missing a shot with it we would have been far better off if we had taken a spoon. I seldom use it. It is apt to take me out of my groove.

145-Yard Pitch Hardest For Average Man.

Sarazen, about to be dismissed from the hospital after a week's siege of influenza, was asked then to suggest the hardest shot for the player struggling desperately to "break a hundred." He was reminded that this player would not be bothered with a No. 1 iron, so that was out.

"The hardest shot for the ordinary player," said Gene, "I think is the pitch from 145 yards to the green. The most important, however, I would say is the chip to the pin from 20 yards and under.

"The player who gets around occasionally under a hundred but more often over should rely on his spoon rather than the long iron.

"The easiest irons when one is playing well are the No. 5 (mashie), the No. 6 (mashie niblick), No. 7 (spade) and some times the No. 3 (mashie iron).

Says Most Women Too Lazy to Practice.

"Many men golfers who failed to improve their ability to gain a complete mastery of these 145-yard pitches, and as a result wastes a lot of strokes, are like most woman golfers—they're too lazy to practice them. They spend too much time on tee shots since they get more fun out of giving the ball a ride than placing it where it counts the most.

"Many golfers continually try to overplay some of their clubs. Average golfers should learn that every iron club is built for a certain distance, and, when in doubt, should use the stronger club. Too, I think they will profit if they will make up their minds that playing only on week-ends, they will not be able to get anything like the distance with the several clubs the pro gets who plays almost every day and practices between times.

Suggests Using Brassie Off the Tee.

"I think most players should be satisfied to get between 135 and 140 yards with a No. 4 iron, 125 to 130 yards with a No. 5, and 100 and under with a No. 6. The wedge (niblick) should not be used for pitches of more than 50 yards from the green.

"Many golfers will play better and have more fun if they do not use a driver on the tee until they are reasonably proficient. The brassie will be better for the high handicap man.

"I do not believe, either, in a lot of practice swings and waggles. I have seen players waggle the clubs a dozen times before hitting the ball. They are all worn out and have no strength left for the swing."

Tomorrow—Some Golf Players.

Joe Sweeney Is Signed By Baltimore Quintet

Joe Sweeney, star forward of the Eagles, has signed with Dobbs Pros, recently organized Baltimore team, it was learned yesterday. He will not sever connections with the Eagles, however, but will play with the local five every Sunday. A few years ago Sweeney played with Joe Cambria's Pros, of Baltimore, and was popular with Baltimore court fans.

Dobbs will open its season tonight at Baltimore, where it meets the powerful Lustine-Nicholson tossers.

Manager Lou Friedman has signed Joe Hoffman, Lefty Stern, Dutch Baer and Duke Allen, in addition to Sweeney.

The Post to Stage 7th Annual Tourney To Decide District Basket Ball Titles

Tech High Again to Be Scene of A.A.U. Court Play.

Games to Start on March 2; Play in Seven Classes.

BASKET ball teams of the District of Columbia will settle their champion claims under the auspices of the Washington Post for the seventh consecutive year, it was determined last night when the board of managers of the District Amateur Athletic Union voted to hold the annual tournament under the sponsorship of the Post.

Under the auspices of the Post, the annual basket ball tourney was inaugurated in 1927 and each year increased in the number of entries until with more than 100 teams competing in 7 weight classes the tournament has become the greatest sectional event of its kind in the entire nation.

Tech High, which for the past 3 years has been the scene of the games, again will be the site of the tournament, it was announced last night by Winfree Johnson, chairman of the A. A. U. basket ball committee who already has obtained March 2 as the opening date of play.

In the past, the tournament has been one of the few sports events to fill the Tech High Gymnasium to capacity. The tourney each year is the climax of the local basket ball season with scores of teams in each class staking their title claims in the elimination event.

With the Tech Gym again the scene, ideal conditions for play will mark the tournament. As in the past, Approved Board officials will handle the games with a full compliment of members of the A. A. U. basket ball committee and The Post Sports Staff arranging the schedules, the scoreboard, drawing and other details of play that in previous years contributed to the success of the tournament.

The tourney is open to all teams in the District of Columbia and nearby suburbs which are registered in the A. A. U. All players must be registered with the teams they will represent before February 1, 1933, and must have played in at least two games with their teams before that date.

Thus the tournament will obviate an evil that has often disrupted local sandlot sports and clouded championship claims. The "jumping" of star players from team to team is thus impossible under A. A. U. rules.

As in the past, the tournament will be conducted in seven classes, five for men and boys, and two for girls. The classes will comprise the 100-pounders, 115-pounders, 130-pounders, 145-pounders and unlimited in the boys and men's groups, and senior and unlimited divisions in the girl's groups.

The winners of each class will be recognized by the A. A. U. as the year's champions in their respective classes, and will be rewarded by the official Amateur Athletic Union trophies by the local association.

Team entry blanks and blanks for the individual registration of players will be available within a few days at The Post sports department, the Boys Club, Spalding's, the Jewish Community Center and other sports centers.

In conjunction with his announcement of the award of the tournament to The Post, Chairman Johnson announced that the Community Center League comprising 24 teams would enter the tournament in a body.

Tunero Beats Thil In Nontitle Fight

Paris, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Marcel Thil, of France, recognized by the National Boxing Association of the United States as the world's middleweight boxing champion, tonight dropped a 12-round decision to Kid Tunero, of Cuba. Thil weighed 161 pounds and Tunero 159.

Tunero's clever footwork kept him out of the reach of Thil's attack in the early part of the fight. In the closing rounds, the Cuban scored freely to clinch the decision. Thil's title was not at stake.

Dempsey's N. B. A. Ban Holds, Members Warned

Chicago, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The National Boxing Association today called attention to its membership that Jack Dempsey is still under suspension in N. B. A. territory because of his disagreement with the Mississippi commission.

"Your president suggests a careful check of activities by Jack Dempsey in National Boxing Association territory," President James "Bingo" Brown advised in the Weekly Bulletin, "and that he be restrained from further participation in this branch of athletics until released by the Mississippi commission."

Dempsey was suspended on March 13, 1931, on the charge by the Mississippi commission that he acted as a copromoter of a boxing card at Columbus, Miss., and failed to pay accumulated bills. Dempsey denies that he acted as a promoter, insisting he attended as a referee only.

GIANTS MAIL CONTRACTS.

G. W. DOWNS MARINES, 66 TO 20

Parrack Gets 19 Poin in First Half of One-Sided Game.

Special to The Washington Post.

QUANTICO, Va., Jan. 16.—Flashing some of their most impressive basket ball this season, George Washington University's angular basket ball team overwhelmed the Quantico Marines here tonight by a score of 66-20, being markedly superior at every department of the game and never being in danger of having a healthy lead cut down.

The Marines could make headway—if it can be called that—only in the second half of the game, against a scratch combination of G. W. secondaries, after the first team, led by the redoubtable Wick Parrack, had rolled up a lead of 34-6 in the first half. The Marineso managed to sink 14 points in the second chapter, but it was like spitting into Niagara in face of the scoring power of the visiting club.

Colonials Show Clever Passing.

Passing was the keynote of the Colonials tonight. The two teams the Washington school used were five times as adept at handling the ball than the Leathernecks. They passed in and out, under, over and around the locals, until they managed to shake a man into the clear. More than half of G. W.'s baskets were scored by players standing directly beneath the basket with the surrounding territory being as free as Marines as is Nicaragua.

It was G. W.'s third straight, and their sixth victory in nine starts. Wick Parrack was used only in the first half, and he scored 19 points. Jimmy Howell, who played during most of the game, went out on personals near the end, but not before he had scored 17 points. Forrest Burgess was the spearhead of the passing attack, for a change.

About 500 saw the game.

WASHINGTON WANTS RACING

Olympia, Wash., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—A horse racing bill which would permit parimutuel betting is to be introduced in the House of the Washington State Legislature within two weeks.

Representative Joseph Roberts announced today he is working on a measure which will give the State 90 days of racing under the supervision of a commission of three to be appointed by the governor.

Special Navy Squad To Develop Athletes

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 16.—A large number of midshipmen athletically inclined, but shy on strength and stamina, have joined the newly organized "special athletic squad," and will be given exercises and calisthenics, designed to promote musculardevelopment. Academy authoritiesc believe that the exercises will be of special benefit for those midshipment not participating in winter sports, who plan to go out for football during the 1933 season.

The exercises are under the supervision of Lieut. Comdr. E. B. Taylor, gymnasium medical officer, and it is not unlikely that many of the Middies taking them will be found among the gridiron squad when spring practice sessions are inaugurated March 15.

Eastern-Tech Battle for Second

Series High Scorers Get Opportunities This Atefrnoon.

Central Is Favored to Enlarge Its Lead Today.

A BATTLE between high-scoring stars of the interhigh series will add zest to the games on the card today. Eastern faces Tech for second place, and Roosevelt's Rough Riders attempt to do what both of the above teams have failed to accomplish thus far, stop Central. The games will be played in that order at Tech's gym.

Leading the individual scorers of the series with 35 points to his credit, Al Waters, blond-haired Eastern forward, must be at his best today if this total is to be increased. Waters might take his cue from Carroll Shore, of Central, who remained in a corner last Friday afternoon and was well rewarded for his patience.

Eastern Twice Beat Tech Last Year.

Eastern dealt the Maroon and Gray a double defeat last season, the only team to do it. Central with Buddy Nau whipping the ball into men standing in the corners of the court and a pivot man on the foul line, cleaved Tech's famed zone defense wide open. Eastern used a similar, though slower, style last season in winning both games. The Blue had tall Bernie Lieb and little "Dead-eye" Kane to rely on then. Waters is the only player to hit the old peach basket consistently this year.

Tech, with a defense that saves the stamnia of its players for a smooth, fast-breaking attack, is favored over its rival. It has a trio of scoring aces in Bernie Reichhardt, Carroll Daly and Waverly Wheeler, whose power may wreak havoc and desolation among Eastern followers. Wheeler, over-anxious and nervous, did not show his true form against Central, but there is no guarantee that he will not break loose today.

Roosevelt's standard bearers will have to live up to their nickname to down Central's flying courtmen. Shorty Harris, second on the scoring list with 29 points, is in grave danger of having his thunder lifted by the Mount Pleasant sharpshooters. Harris will find himself surrounded by five boys gifted with an uncanny ability for making points.

Central figures to be too swift and too clever for Roosevelt, and on paper looks like the winner by at least 10 points.

G. U. Prep Courtmen Smother Landon, 37-7

Holding Landon Prep's puerile basket ball team to one field goal in the second half, Georgetown Prep's fast young team scored a 37-7 victory yesterday at Garrett Park in one of the most decision prep school basket ball games played in several years here.

The eventual winners led by a score of 21-5 at the end of the first half, held the visitors scoreless in the third period and balked all but one basket in the final quarter, and that was shot by Becker, Landon center, near the end of the fray.

Allen, Keating and Nee led the home team. It was the winner's tenth victory in eleven starts.

THREE JEFFERSON WINNERS IN ROW FOR JOCKEY PARKE

Lad Has Total Of 44 for Meeting

Whittacre Is Hurt as Song Hit Falls in Feature.

Hot Shot Scores in Sprint; Hek Pays $96 in Sixth.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—An eight-race bargain bill was offered here this afternoon, in accordance with the policy which will prevail for the final week of the local meeting. The fifth event, a six-furlong dash, brought out the best field, with C. E. Davidson's Hot Shot providing an upset. The gelded son of Tryster scored by a head in a blanket finish to pay $17.40 for $2. Dollar Princess was another head before Making Bubbles, with Anne L. a close fourth. The winner's time was 1:13 3-5.

The crowd received a scare when Song Hit stumbled a few yards from the finish and tossed Jockey R. Whittacre. The lad was carried off the track to first-aid quarters, where an examination revealed a pair of broken ribs and bad shaking-up.

Long Hit Falls While Fighting for Lead.

Song Hit and Hot Shot staged a duel for the lead until well into the stretch, where the former tired before falling. Dollar Princess, always close to the pace, and the slow-starting Making Bubbles challenged on the outside of Hot Shot, but the winner, after appearing beaten at the sixteenth pole, came again under strong handling.

Apprentice Jockey Monte Parke had another field day, riding three winners in a row in the second, third and fourth races—to give him a total of 44 for the meeting.

Watchgirl proved best of the platers in the opening event, a gallop of a mile and one-sixteenth which drew nine starters. The On Watch mare beat Dacite by half a length in a hard drive, while Tryandagain accounted for the show another length and a half away. The winner could not keep up with the early pace but under patient handling ran over the leaders in the closing stages. Pacheco was badly shut off on the inside while racing strongly in the stretch.

Harlem, Parke Pair Up In Second.

The combination of E. R. Bradley's mare, Harlem, and, Parke was unbeatable in the second contest, form players seeing their choice register by four open lengths at odds of $3.60 for $2. Fill in took the place from Wise Maid by a like distance. Harlem broke on top but Parke took her off the pace. The favorite moved up after a half mile and easily overtook Miss Perfection to gallop the remainder of the trip. Fill in closed rapidly but was no match for Harlem.

Parke was astride the heavily played Good Scout in the third event and the lad made no mistakes, bringing his mount home a winner by three lengths for a double. Raffles Chance saved the place half a length from Statecraft. The winner was outrun to the middle of the bend where he began a drive that was entirely too much for his opposition. Absolution and Bonnie Cap did themselves no good when they bumped several times in the final drive. The winner returned $4.20.

The stewards ordered Jockey J. Duguy suspended for the balance of the meeting and Jockey W. Moran for three days for rough riding in this race.

Parke made it three in a row by driving Thistle Fyrn home a head winner over Bill Looney in the fourth race. Eveline F lost the place by a length. Kelso cut out most of the running but Thistle Fyrn got his head in front in the stretch and gamely stayed off the challenge of Bill Looney, aPrke putting up a strong finish. Thistle Fyrn paid $6.40.

Hek was in a running mood today and electrified the patrons by scoring a handy victory in the sixth race to return $96.00 for a $2 ticket. A length and a half back Toytown to take the place by a like margin from Sizzling. Bonnie Cap, the favorite and Toytown raced themselves into defeat vieing for the lead the former stopping after entering the stretch. Hek, outrun early, closed with a rush on the outside and wore down Toytown in handy fashion.

Drastic water was a handy winner of the finale beating Prince Reno by a length and a half to pay $28.60. Cupidity lost the place by a half length. The stewards announced that on recommendation of Patrol Judge Otis, the suspension of Jockey M. Calvert has been terminated.

Repaid, Star Colt, Goes in Training

Candidate for Derby Opens Work on Indoor Track at Aqueduct.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—James F. Johnson's Repaid, rated by many horsemen as the outstanding candidate for the Kentucky Derby, started training for the big 3-year-olds stake today at Aqueduct.

"He has been entered in the Kentucky Derby," said Trainer Eddie Phelan, "but he will not be pointed for any particular race. He is too good a horse to hurry along and he will race when he is ready."

Until the middle of March, the son of Kai Sang, purchased from the Harry F. Sinclair dispersal sale for $1,200, will gallop several miles on an indoor track each morning. If the weather permits then, he will start outdoor training.

Winner of the junior champion stakes and third in the2 Pimlico Futurity, Repaid is eligible for the Belmont stakes, the Withers, Travers, Dwyer, Lawrence realization, the Jocky Club gold cup and will be named for the Preakness, the classis and American Derby.

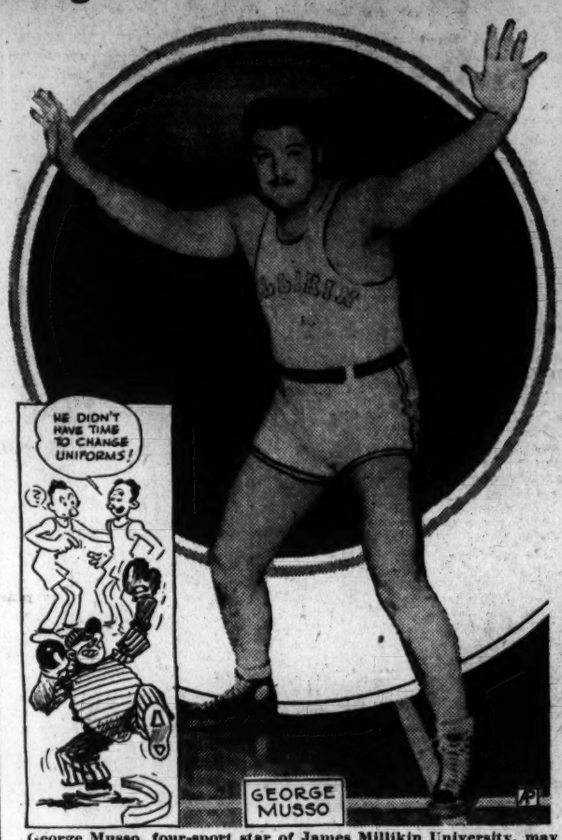
Illinois School Fixes Sport Program to Fit 265-Pounder



George Musso, four-sport star of James Millikin University, may be the only athlete in the country who has a hand in arranging his school's sports program. The schedule makers see to it that he doesn't have to omit anything from his repertoire.

DECATUR, Ill. (A.P.).—George Musso's greatest burden is his 265 pounds of physique, but he handles this bulk with such facility that he is considered the outstanding all-around athlete in Illinois collegiate circles.

Musso has romped up and down gridirons, basket ball courts, baseball diamonds and cindered fields of Illinois college campuses for four years, and has become a star in each of four sports in which he participates.

At present he is the bulwark of James Milliken University's basket ball team's defense.

He played tackle on Milliken's football team and captained the eleven through a successful Illinois Intercollegiate Conference season last fall.

In the spring Musso attends to the catching duties on the varsity baseball team—but puts in his spare time throwing the javelin and discus and putting the shot for the track squad.

In fact, he is so valuable to both these springtime squads that Millikin officials try to arrange the baseball and track schedules to allow him a maximum of opportunity to compete in each sport.

Musso started his title-winning ways when, as a high schooler at Collinsville, Ill., he won the State prep javelin throw.

In State college association rankings he has been recognized as all-conference tackle for three seasons, and last year was honored with the captaincy of the all-conference eleven.

His unusual weight is fairly well distributed over a 6-foot, 2-inch frame.

Musso intends to enter professional football when his collegiate career is ended.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

FIRST RACE—JACK BIENER and BUCK HERO hook-up in the opener and it looks to me like a victory for the former. Both have done a lot of very convincing racing hereabouts and both are in tiptop shape. FAYLIN seems to have the edge on the others.

SECOND RACE—GALA FLIGHT appears to be a trifle outclassed in this field at first glance but has more than an outside chance. There is a smacking of class among these sprinters principally in SMEAR and ANTE BELLUM.

THIRD RACE—SISTER MARY needs only to run back to that recent brilliant effort to beat these. Any price will be a good one. ADRIAN and UFORME are in fine shape and will be the principle contenders.

FOURTH RACE—Unless there's something in this maiden race which has stuff not shown in recent trials, RACE STREET should run away. Has been close enough to warrant strong backing and probably will get it. OCEAN was beaten when a favorite, ALBANE for the show.

FIFTH RACE—KILMORE has failed in easier fields, but may have been preparing for a surprise and a substantial price. This one wo'ks much better than he has shown in races. EVA B. and ON RUSH will cause the chief trouble.

SIXTH RACE—COUSIN JUDY (I'll run you down) gets in this with 99 pounds. I'd pick a softer spot for her, but her handlers evidently know their stuff. This miss is primed for a killing and has been scratched regularly while waiting. DR. PARRISH and PEACE LADY to take care of the others.

SEVENTH RACE—An off track would make this race a lot easier to figure. However, on a fast course I prefer WRENCH, HAPPY LAD and SOUTHLAND LAD.

EIGHTH RACE — The veteran STRONGHEART goes the Bennings' call in the finale. HAL RILEY and LUCK PIECE to fill out the money picture.

Schacht Will Go Back to Russia If Nats Lose, Coach Tells Yankees

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Al Schacht, wise-cracking coach of the Washington Baseball Club, paid a friendly visit to the offices of the New York Yankees today, but promptly issued a challenge to the assembled members of the world champions' intelligence staff.

"Since when did you birds start working on Al Simmons and George Earnshaw?" demanded Schacht. "Tell me how they figure it's going to be a breeze this year for the Yankees? Haven't they ever heard of the Washington Ball Club, the best outfit now in the league?

"If you ask me, I think the breeze is going to blow in the wrong direction for the Yanks. They're liable to crack in several places. Sure, Ruth can still hit, but what are you fellows going to do about outfielders who can pick 'em up, catch 'em and throw 'em out? If Washington, a much stronger club due to those trades, doesn't win the pennant, I will go back to Russia."

WRESTLERS OFFER RELIEF.

Topeka, Kans. (A.P.).—Another use for the football stadium has been proposed at Washburn College. A promoter hopes to lease Moore Bowl for wrestling shows, al fresco, next summer.

West's Strikeout King Purchased by Pirates

Pittsburgh, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Ralph J. Birkhofer, 213-pound southpaw and strikeout king of the Western Leagu strikeout king of the Western League in 1932 is the newest addition to the pennant-hungry Pittsburgh Pirates. His purchase was announced today.

The 24-year-old hurler, who has had some five years of minor league seasoning, pitched 30 games last year for Tulsa, a Pirate farm, winning 15 and losing 10. In 208 innings he allowed 170 hits and 122 runs. His feat of fanning 188 won first honors in that department of the league. He passed 122 batters.

G. W. Frosh Defeat Gonzaga Five, 42-26

ROOSEVELT'S COURTMEN SCORE

Beat Wash. and Lee, 51-32, After Trailing by 9 Points.

LYNN WOODWORTH, Roosevelt High Coach of athletics, started his second team against Washington and Lee, of Balston, yesterday on the former's court.

When the first quarter had ended, the plucky visitors, led by its tall center, Bone, were in front by 12 to 3.

Coach Woodworth sensed trouble. He shot in the varsity when play was resumed in the second quarter, and the local lads marched back to the locker rooms to such lemons after swinging into a 22-16 lead.

Roosevelt Steps Out To Win.

From then on oosevelt had the situation well in hand and won the game, 51 to 32. Joe Sherman, galloping guard, scored 23 points, the same number of field goals tallied by his team. Another Roosevelt sentinel, Harris, plunked in eight goals for 16 points. Bone led the visitors with 10 markers.

WOOD LEADS IN PRO GOLF WINNINGS

"Loot" $3,906 Since October; Shute Is Close Second.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Craig Wood, the surprising shotmaker from Deal, N. J., failed to annex his fourth consecutive championship in the rich Agua Caliente open last week, but he picked up enough cash to go bouncing ahead of Denny Shute, Hudson, Ohio, star, in the winter gold rush of professional golf.

Wood's "loot" at Agua Caliente totaled $750 to give him the lead with a combined purse of $3,906.75 in the campaign which started with the St. Louis open last October. Shute, who captured the Miami-Biltmore and placed second in the National City and Miami opens, has won a total of $3,400 for an exceptional average of $1,133.33 for each of the three tournaments he entered during the campaign. Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., first prize winner in the Agua Caliente open, ranked third with a total of $2,284.50.

Gene Sarazen, halted by illness in the Los Angeles Open, was far down the list of big money winners and seemed certain to lose out as the winter tournament champion for the first time in three years. Gene won $600 in the Miami-Biltmore and $250 in the Miami Open before going to California, but he was forced out with an attack of flu.

Olin Dutra, also was far down the list with only $627.75 in prize money.

John Revolta, the 21-year-old Menominee, Mich., star, competed in only two big money tournaments, but came out with $1,900 to land in fourth place, followed by Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., who has been enriched by $1,831.25.

Other leading money winners so far are:

Willie Hunter, Los Angeles, $1,570.
Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mexico, $1,250.70.
Walter Hagen, Detroit, $1,252.50.
Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., $1,050.
Harry Cooper, Chicago, $1,050.
Al Espinosa, Akron, Ohio, $1,034.50.
Eddie Loos, Chicago, $976.

71 RINGMEN SEEK NAVY BERTHS

Another Fine Team Predicted; First Match Jan. 28.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 16.—With the opening boxing match of the season scheduled for January 28 against New Hampshire, Naval Academy mitt-slingers today entered upon the serious part of their training, under the direction of H. M. (Spike) Webb, veteran coach. Although Webb has pretty well settled who the first and second best men in the respective classes will be, nevertheless a series of finals will be staged during the next several days.

The naval school is entering upon its fourteenth season in the ring sport, and teams turned out by Webb have established an enviable record, one that perhaps will stand for a long time. The Middies have suffered but one defeat in dual meets in that long period. That was at the hands of Syracuse two years ago. Indications are that the team will be stronger and better balanced than that of last year, which cleaned up all comers.

Veterans Named in Eight Classes.

The Tars will start out with half of the eight classes occupied by veterans, and virtually champions. To begin with, there is that fiery little scrapper Archie Wright, in the bantamweight, who is captain of the team. Wright hails from Eldorado, Tex. His understudy, Webb said today, is A. C. (Chec) Smith, who hails from Springfield, Mass. In the featherweight, F. A. (Art) Dolan, of Dawson, Minn., has displaced H. S. (Herb) Fulmer, of St. Louis, former intercollegiate titleholder. In the lightweight division, H. L. (Hank) Miller, veteran from Fairbanks, Alaska, has it all over ten other rivals. The runner-up is J. J. Southerland, of Miami Beach, Fla.

Two new men have come to the front in the welterweight division, with H. K. (Ken) Nauman, of Frankfort, Kans., having the call.

Getting down to the heavier weights, Webb said that John B. McNaughton, of Charleroi, Pa., a veteran, outclasses ten others in the specialweight class, or 155 pounds, with J. J. (Johnny) Powers, of New York City, as the chief understudy. Likewise Robert M. (Bob) Lee, of St. Petersburg, Fla., another veteran, who developed rapidly last season, stands out among the 165-pounders. Next best of the lot is F. B. Herold, of Kansas City, Mo.

Harbold, D. C. Boy, Seeks Heavy Berth.

The light-heavyweight division is dominated by football men. George S. Lambert, of Robelin, La., a lineman, appears to have clinched the honors over H. H. (Swede) Larson, back field man, of Collingswood, N. J. Gridiron players also shine in the heavyweight class, and the choice has narrowed down to two. These are Robert P. (Butch) Harbold, of Washington, D. C., and Slade Cutter, of Oswego, Ill., regular, and substitute center, respectively. Cutter seems to have a slight edge over the Washington boy, according to Coach Webb.

Indicating the intense interest manifested by the Midshipmen, 71 aspired to positions on the team when the call for candidates was issued a few weeks ago.

Workman and Walls Await Hialeah Meet

Miami, Fla., Jan. 16 (U.P.).—Jockeys Raymond "Sonny" Workman, who rode Equipoise in his sensational campaign as a 3 and 4-year-old, and Pete Walls, who won the $88,700 Futurity at Belmont Park with Kerry Patch last year, are on the scene ready for the opening January 19 of the Miami Jockey Club's 45-day meeting at Hialeah Park.

Workman will ride for his contract employer, C. V. Whitney, while Walls will ride free lance during the meeting.

RUNS-HITS and ERRORS

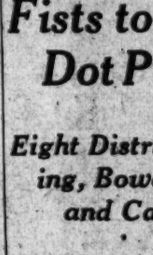
THE WASHINGTON BALL CLUB has received 12 requests for world series tickets. On its face value this seems to be a happy commentary on the faith of local fandom, but without investigating the personal traits of the ladies and gentlemen concerned, it is a pretty safe bet that about six of them must recall the palmy days of 1924 and 1925 when one had to apply for slips which enabled the holders to buy tickets—a method installed by Clark Griffith to save the jams at the park ticket offices.

Nobody has ever estimated how much money was made by holders of such slips. Enterprising local fans—particularly in the Government—sent in names of everybody in their office, or wing, or building, and upon receipt of the coveted slips sold them off to last-minute fans for prices as high as 30 bucks.

It was like selling your place in line, except you could sit down and make more money.

Johnny Kerr, scrappy utility infielder, signed for 1933 yesterday after a short and snappy discussion with Dean Griffith. We don't know whether Johnny got a raise or whether the cut wasn't as deep as he thought it was going to be. Anyway, he emerged from the signing sanctuary full of smiles.



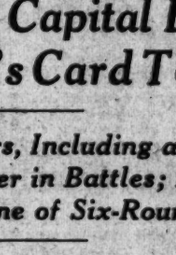
Kerr, in the opinion of the front office, has more pep and vi-Washington player since Suarky Matthews. He was the fourth Nat to sign, the others being Cronin, Harris and Thomas.

Bill Harridge, who is one of those rare fellows who has time to be a swell guy besides being president of the American League, was in town yesterday and unleashed two somewhat important statements, discussed at home length in another story in today's Post.

Harridge, by the way, is the pappa of modern baseball schedules. Back in his early days as secretary to Ban Johnson, he was responsible for revising the then standard schedule to a highly complicated sort of system which largely eliminated long railroad trips, "repeat" train rides and other methods of lowering the overhead.

The American League president is as genial a person as the game encompasses. Yesterday he was offered a ride to the station in a reporter's sorry automobile, willingly accepted, dumped his baggage in, climbed over some assorted tools on the floor of the car, climbed out again when the darn motor would'nt start, and helped push it a ways down the street, ably helped by Eddie Eynon.

There are quite a few baseball players who haven't seen service for years and are making ends meet by 50-centing players to death. There was a fellow in town last weekend who touched nearly all the local big league fraternity—Clark Griffith, Walter Johnson, Eddie Eynon, Johnny Kerr, Mike Martin, Joe Judge, Sam Rice and Ossie Bluge.



Incidentally, if somebody ever approaches you on the street and starts with, "I'm an old ball player"—get the dime out.

This Goose Goslin has a sensayuma, or sump'n. In reply to the question, "How old are you," on the biographical blanks Miss Mildred Robertson (Griff's secretary) is sending out, the horny-handed veteran coyly wrote, "Just 24."

The new Nat contracts (with the brand-new clause about reduction of pay if sent to the minors) went out yesterday from the ball-yard office, accompanied by nice notes breaking the news of pay cuts gently but firmly.

Fists to Fly as Capital Boys Dot Portner's Card Tonight

Eight District Fighters, Including aDvis, Irving, Bowen, Essinger in Battles; Dougan and Caplan in One of Six-Rounders.

By DAVE HERMAN.

LOCAL boys will have their fling at Portner's Arena in Alexandria tonight, when Promoter Frankie Mann will offer for the approval and entertainment of weekly fistic customers 34 rounds in a program that for the first time in history will not feature any one of five fights.

Eight scrappers from the District of Columbia, some of whom have been tried but never denied, and four from Baltimore will be summoned into action, with indications that a variety of fighting, such as sock, science, speed and slugging, will be presented.

Mann to Provide Fans With Action.

This type of card is being staged by Matchmaker Mann as a test of what boxing patrons want. During the past few months they have given the preliminary boys all the cheers and reserved the jeers for the headline scrappers who have staged most creditable performances. Judging by recent outbursts, fans, the promoter and officials alike believe, are desirous of seeing murderous punches and a free flow of the proverbial claret.

Five of the six fights will be six-rounders. Shortly before Joe Doty, hard-hitting Pennsylvanian, hibernating around these parts, and Tommy Horn, of Baltimore, cross punches in the opening four-rounder, the impeccable James Lake (Jimmy to you) will dig his paws into a hat with the names of the ten fighters and select the bouts in order. In other words, if Henry Irving, who carries a tremendous following from the Northeast, is fortunate enough to find himself against Walter Kirkwood on the last bout, he will be very happy.

Anyhow, there are a number of good fighters that bear watching, even though the customary drawing card and suspense before the main go will be lacking.

There are Leroy Dougan, late of Arkansas, and Izzy Caplan, Baltimore's newest featherweight sensation, who will battle in what promises to be a humdinger. Caplan dusted Doug Swetman for a decision last week in his debut at Portner's, while Swetman rang up his second victory in as many weeks by stopping Young Jack Gentile, taxi driver. Both are clever.

Davis Tries Comeback Against Meola.

Roddy Davis bounds back into the ring after two weeks' of vigorous workouts, with Angelo Meola, a fine Italian prospect from Baltimore, as his opponent. Both are lightweights. Davis is a two-fisted puncher, covers up nicely, and is regarded as the best of the two.

Ray Bowen, former shoe salesman, of the famous fighting Bowens, is up against Lloyd Phelps, tough Arizonan. Willie Essinger, who punches fast and hard, will take on Jimmy Tramberis, of Baltimore.

Tickets are on sale at Vic's. The first bout goes on at 8:30.

BOXING BIT'S SELECTIONS—Doty to beat Horn, Irving to beat Kirkwood, Phelps to Beat Bowen, Essinger to beat Tramberis, Dougan to beat Caplan, Davis to beat Meola.

Soccoli Leads Qualifiers In Florida Tourney

Miami, Fla., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Don Soccoli, of New Britain, Conn., who has campaigned often in the Florida winter tournaments, carded 40-36—76 today to lead early qualifiers in the tenth annual Glenn H. Curtiss trophy tournament for amateurs over the Miami Springs course.

One stroke behind him came Jack Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., also a veteran of the winter play, who had 39-38—77.

Qualifying will continue through tomorrow with match play starting Wednesday.

Stocks Decline 1.3 Points As Attempts to Rally Fail

Professional Tactics Mark Trading in Sales of 869,433 Shares.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Stocks were unable to make good on early promises of a rally today. Professional traders, who worked hard for gains of a fraction to a point during the morning and early afternoon, changed front in the last hour and a number of 1 to 2 point net losses resulted.

The market resembled a number of last week's sessions, for wheat's closing slump appeared to have been a major influence on sentiment here. Never very robust, shares sold off easily when grain pit quotations skidded and volume increased on the decline. However, it was a dull market at best, with sales reaching a total of 869,433 shares.

Stocks went down rather uniformly when the reaction started, though members of the farm group fell off as sharply as any single section. Case lost more than 2, while Harvester and Sears Roebuck dropped a point. American Can, down nearly 3, was softer than most industrials, for recessions by U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Ingersoll Rand, Columbian Carbon and the recently strong tobaccos approximated a point. Steel preferred and Allied Chemical gave up a couple of points or so.

Rails worked 1 to 2 points lower. This being the range of losses for such issues as New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, Lackawanna, Southern Pacific and Santa Fe. American Telephone's dip of 2½ stood out in the utilities. The company departed from recent precedent in that it sent no fourth quarter earnings statements with today's dividend checks, the assumption being, in the absence of official explanation, that the management preferred to await final figures rather than offer a preliminary estimate as has been done for some recent quarters.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

| Advances | 118 | 114 |
| Declines | 340 | 166 |
| Unchanged | 123 | 120 |

Stocks.

Attempts to rally failed, and the average loss was 1.3 points. Professional tactics were evident in trading. The day's turnover was 869,433 shares.

Bonds.

Loans drifted 2 point lower, led by Government bonds. Germans slumped; United States issues turned soft. Sales mounted to $10,616,000.

Curb.

A battle to advance prices was lost in late dealing. Changes were fractional. The turnover reached 120,000 shares. Specialties were quiet; oils held firm.

Wheat.

Prices slid downhill again on selling drives caused by reports of the Roosevelt conference on the allotment bill. Corn and oats joined the decline. May wheat sold at 46¾ to 46⅞ cents.

Cotton.

Losses of 12 to 16 points resulted in an active market. Liquidating and Wall street selling were blamed. March closed at 6.03. Liverpool laid the easy market there to decline of Egyptian cotton.

CURB LOSES BATTLE TO ADVANCE PRICES

Fractional Changes Mark Trading as Sales Total 120,000.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The curb market started out the new week today as if it were bent on marking up prices, but the movement faded out in the late dealings and the market closed irregularly lower. Transfers totaled 120,000 shares against 100,000 Friday.

While speculative sentiment appeared moderately cheerful, there was little in the day's new developments to catch the imagination. As a result, the market was allowed to drift of its own accord. Price changes were mostly confined to fractions, although a few stocks dropped more than a point.

Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric dipped more than 1. The 6 per cent preferred stock of Electric Bond & Share sagged about as much. Small fractions were lost by American Superpower and United Light & Power "A." Cities Service was steady.

The oils held well. Gulf was down a fraction. The Standard issues were steady, Humble gaining a small fraction.

The specialties were somewhat quieter than usual. Singer, Aluminum and A. O. Smith lost as much as a point. Swift International gained slightly. The Ford issues were quietly traded. Ford Limited holding steady and Ford of France shading last week's closing price by a scant margin. Deere gained initially, but lost its advance in the late selling, in sympathy with wheat.

Loss in Melting Gold Causes 16-Point Cut in Import Level

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Dow Jones & Co. said today that the gold import point of the French franc, the price at which it becomes profitable to ship gold from France to this country in settlement of financial commitments, had been lowered approximately sixteen points as a result of a loss of metal experienced in melting down French gold recently shipped here.

The gold point is determined largely by the cost of shipping the metal, this item including freight, insurance, loading and unloading charges, and finally the loss of gold experienced in the process of melting down. The less the fineness of gold, or the poorer the quality of a gold bar, the higher this cost, which in turn drives the gold import point still lower.

The difficulty, it was said, had arisen from the fact that French gold bars recently received were technically "mutilated." This was caused by the taking of a "chip" assay of the gold in France when the metal was shipped there last summer from this country. Thereafter, the French stamp of fineness was placed on the bars.

Ordinarily gold bars bearing the American stamp as to fineness of quality are accepted here without question at their accustomed face value. When, however, bars comprising a recent shipment were melted down, it was found that they suffered a slightly greater loss in value than had been expected.

The process of melting gold bars causes a loss in the case of bars of relatively high quality averaging about two ounces for each $1,000,000. Presence of an alloy increases the loss. The loss on some coin bars received lately was said to have run as high as 26 ounces for $1,000,000.

The former gold import point on French gold, in terms of the franc, was about 3.9043 cents. Dow, Jones estimated the new gold import point, as a result of the reported loss in gold content, at theoretical figure of 3.9027, but said that actually gold would probably not be shipped from Paris to New York unless the franc rate receded to at least 3.9012, or somewhat below current levels.

Banks Told to Halt Foreclosure Sales

Iowa Takes Steps to Relieve Farmers in Mortgage Crisis.

Des Moines, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Receivers for 348 closed Iowa banks today had orders from L. A. Andrews, State superintendent of banking, not to hold any more farm real estate or chattel mortgage foreclosure sales until prices were higher.

In making the announcement, Mr. Andrews said that he hoped the State would establish a precedent for other mortgage-holding agencies. He said it would be impossible for him to estimate the amount of collectible paper held by the receivers for the closed banks.

Meanwhile, in Wisconsin and Nebraska governmental agencies were taking steps to aid the harassed farmer. Many Wisconsin circuit court judges were ready to follow Gov. Schmedeman's suggestion that they refrain from enforcing the law on foreclosures.

BONDS DRIFT LOWER; GERMAN LOANS DROP

U. S. Issues Turn Easy as Market Declines; Sales, $10,616,000.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The bond market lacked assurance today, and prices in all categories drifted to irregularly lower levels.

A sharp slump in German maturities and softness of United States Governments obligations tended to unsettle most domestic groups, although there was some resistance shown by scattered rails, utilities and industrials.

Trading volume sagged with prices, sales totaling only $10,616,000. This was a lower aggregate than that of any day last week except the Saturday short session. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans declined two-tenths of a point.

The Federal list was off from five-thirty-seconds to fifteen-thirty-seconds of a point. Realizing in this division was attributed partly to fears the reserve system might relax its easy money policy and to uncertainty regarding the Treasury's spring financing plans. There is some expectancy that large refunding operations may involve a long-term bond issue.

German loans, which last week hovered around their high marks for the past two years, were depressed 1 to more than 6 points. The International 5½s, with a turnover of 414 bonds, lost 2¼ points. The reversed trend of German issues was blamed largely on new political problems in the Reich. Other foreign losers of a point or more included some loans of Argentina, Chile, Denmark, Norway, Hungary and Uruguay. French 7½s gave up a point but came back to close unchanged.

Among the domestic rails, losses of 1 to 2 or more points were suffered by some loans of Allegheny Corporation, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago & Northwestern, Denver & Rio Grande, Illinois Central, Soo Line, New York Central and Southern. Missouri Pacific third 4s swam against the current with a gain of 4½ points, and bonds of Chesapeake & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Chicago & Western Indiana, Union Pacific, Hudson & Manhattan and Pennsylvania were firm.

A number of the best utilities and industrials eased fractionally. New York City Traction bonds were in demand, as were several oil loans. Western Unions and International Telephones were heavy.

Canada Expects Profits If Linseed Oil Is Taxed

Ottawa, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—An increase in the United States duty on linseed oil, as suggested in a Washington dispatch today, might prove a benefit to Canadian flax growers, it was believed by trade officials here. While Canada does not export linseed oil in any great quantity, the Canadian grower shares in the market there for flax seed from which the oil is made. Any improvement in the position of the United States grower should be reflected in Canada, it was believed.

In October last Canada exported 362,578 bushels of flax, of which 334,621 bushels went to the United States. For the year ended with October the total exports of flax were 551,713 bushels, of which 518,884 bushels went to the United States. The value of this trade for the year was $450,748.

U. S. Oyster Crop Up to $12,000,000

Bulk of Yield to Come From Chesapeake Area; Mississippi Second.

Biloxi, Miss., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The American oyster business now runs into eight figures. The season is half over and the Department of Commerce estimates the crop will be worth $12,000,000. Harvesting the crop will give work to about 17,000 men before April—the last of the R months—passes.

Lewis Radcliffe, of the Commerce Department, says reports from principal producing centers indicates an abundant supply of oysters. In 1930, the latest year for which official data are available, the production was in excess of 15,000,000 bushels.

"With recent development in the quick freezing of oysters," Mr. Radcliffe says, "we may expect a gradual extension of the season of their availability beyond the R months to every month in the year."

The bulk of this season's crop, he says, will come from the Chesapeake Bay district, with the Mississippi coast in second place. Virginia, with 2,859,000 bushels in 1930, led the list of producers. Mississippi, with 2,500,000, was second. Then came Maryland, New Jersey, New York and Louisiana. The figures are for market oysters only.

WHEAT VALUES SINK ON SELLING DRIVES

Roosevelt Allotment Report Blamed; Other Grains Join Decline.

Chicago, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Grain prices slid downhill today, with trade attention focused on a conference tonight between President-elect Roosevelt and a member of the Senate agricultural committee.

Enlarged speculative selling accompanied reports that the fate of farm allotment legislation was up to the President-elect. Setbacks of values were in the face of 2,244,000 bushels decreased of the United States wheat visible supply.

Wheat closed weak, ¼ to 1 cent under Saturday's finish; corn, ⅛ to 1¼c down; oats, ¼ to ½c off, and provisions, unchanged to a decline of 2 cents.

Speculative Offerings Up.

Augmented speculative offerings of wheat developed late in the day and were simultaneous with a relative scarcity of buyers. Contributing to the weakness of prices were indications of moisture relief for drought districts of domestic winter wheat territory Southwest. A large increase of the amount of wheat on ocean passage to importing countries was also a bearish influence.

Houses with Eastern connections bought some wheat on early declines, and caused transient price rallies to above Saturday's finish, but the buying was not aggressive and advances were only of a creeping character. The chief reason for purchasing was that last week's setbacks of values amounted to 50 per cent of the recent upturn from the season's low point. Stimulus from this source, however, disappeared in the last half-hour, when speculative selling broadened out.

Largely increased primary receipts of corn acted as a weight on prices both of corn and oats. Beneficial rains were reported in the Argentine corn belt.

Packers' selling eased the provision market despite upturns of hog values.

COTTON PRICES CUT ON SALES PRESSURE

March Closes at 6.03 as General Market Drops 12 to 16 Points.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—After ruling very quiet during the greater part of the session, cotton became more active in the last hour today, declining under liquidation and local or Wall street selling prompted by weakness in the wheat and stock markets.

March contracts after selling off to 6.11 early, rallied to 6.17 and broke to 6.02 in the late trading. They closed at 6.03 with the general market closing barley steady at net declines of 12 to 16 points.

The opening was 4 to 6 points lower in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. There was some selling here through houses with Liverpool and continental connections. There were also a few small selling orders from the South.

Calling Steadies Market.

The market steadied after the call on covering and buying for New Orleans, Wall street and Japanese account. Prices worked up within a point or two of Saturday's finals, but met increased selling later and reached the lowest levels of the day in the late trading.

The carded cloth statistics showed sales for December exceeding production by 9.9 per cent and while billings were 4.9 per cent less than production resulting in an increase of 7.2 per cent in stocks on hand, unfilled orders showed an increase of 12.9 per cent and were said to be the highest for end-December reported since 1929.

Liverpool cables attributed the relatively easy tone there to a decline in Egyptian cotton. This, according to the New York Cotton Exchange Service, was due to fears of an increased import duty on Egyptian cottons into America. Exports today, 32,004, making 4,633,528 so far this season. Port receipts, 26,386. U. S. port stocks, 4,734,815.

GOODS MARKETS.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Many inquiries were reported today for wash goods and other finished lines and business appeared to be expanding a little. The new carpet and rug season opened with a large attendance of buyers. Prices were virtually unchanged. Rayon production figures show lessened output last year, but for the last four months of 1932 and continuing into this year the industry has been on a capacity basis. Women's wear suit demand is increasing. Burlaps showed little change.

Hoover Hears Firestone Propound Golden Rule

(Associated Press.)

Harvey Firestone, tire manufacturer, said yesterday that during a conference with President Hoover he had suggested business conditions could be improved by "putting the golden rule into effect in business dealings."

Firestone, in his talk with Mr. Hoover, said he thought there would be more business if people dispensed their goods with more of an idea of service to the buyer. He has just returned from a Florida vacation and said he talked to the President about that also, as well as Mr. Hoover's Southern cruise.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Highly Nutritious Fresh Goat Milk Now Available From Modern Dairy Nearby; Cheese Cake Bargain Is Found; Dried Sugar Corn Offered.

Raw goat milk, bottled and sold in the careful, modern dairy manner, is among the discoveries the Meanderer would like to report on today. Goat milk, as yet, is found only in Washington shops devoted to health foods. It is being prescribed for some persons by physicians for its nutritious, digestible and laxative qualities and for its alkaline reaction.

The goat milk the Meanderer has discovered is prepared at a goat dairy farm in nearby Maryland, where all modern dairy equipment is used. All containers for handling the goat milk are of paper, and are destroyed each day after being used. The goat milk is not pasteurized, but bottled in the raw state. As goats are not subject to tuberculosis, pasteurization is not recommended for goat milk. Eight per cent is the butterfat score for goat milk. A good butterfat test for cow's milk is 3 per cent.

Special refrigerators for handling the goat milk have been installed in the health food shops prepared to sell it, and delivery may be arranged for through these shops, of which the Meanderer will be glad to furnish the name and address if those interested will call National 4205, Extension 52.

Honey graham wafers, labeled "sunalized," are a delicious accompaniment to the goat milk described above. The "sunalized" honey graham wafers also are sold in the health food shops in 2-pound boxes, for 35 cents.

"Sea Vigor" is a food made from seaweed, sold in packages in the above mentioned shops. It is in a crumbly form and is measured in parts of teaspoonfuls, and added to soups, fruit juice, cereals, malted milk and sandwiches. This food from seaweed is said to contain iodine, copper, phosphorus and iron.

Pussy willows have shown their first timid, slender branches in the flower markets, selling 5 cents a spray, along with the early daffodils and narcissus. For those more interested in plants than in cut flowers for the house there are the artillery ferns, table ferns, some members of the cacti plant family known as "hens and chickens" and consolia, sanseverias and snake plant, sometimes known as "mother-in-law's tongues." The Meanderer found these plants and flowers in the big open market on upper Fourteenth street where many kinds of shops are gathered under one roof.

Canned French mushrooms, choice and tender, and French flageolets, or dried beans, which when cooked are much like fresh limas, are much sought after in a food specialty shop in the big Fourteenth street market mentioned above. Japanese crab meat is another unusual delicacy selling in this shop newly discovered by the Meanderer. This crab meat is in large lumps so advantageous in cooking, or in salads.

Peanut butter, ground of fresh peanuts while you wait, is a choice product sold where the French mushrooms are found. Old-fashioned mushroom crackers, light and crisp, are sold here, too, as well as the large-size oyster crackers not found as often as they used to be.

Ice cream made of cream, sugar and flavorings only, sells for 80 cents a quart, a lower price than is asked for such rich ice cream, in a bakery shop on upper Fourteenth street, the name of which the Meanderer will be glad to furnish if you will call National 4205, extension 52.

Strawberries are selling at 30 cents a quart in many of the local markets. The Meanderer found large, red, sweet ones at this price in the market she visited on upper Fourteenth street northwest.

"The best cheese cake I ever tasted"—"Better than any cheese cake ever made at home"—"Let me have a half of one of those big cheese cakes"—those are all expressions the Meanderer heard from customers in a popular bakery on Fourteenth street northwest, within a few minutes' "meanderings" in the shop. This cheese cake, an innovation with these expert bakers, has the fluffy consistency so desirable in cheese cake, with pineapple foundation and a topping of Swedish bread crumbs, a combination well-nigh irresistible. Other things interesting to housewives offered by this shop are sliced bread of the home-made, large-loaf style; the famous salt-rising bread which probably is offered by no other bakery in Washington, so good that it is ordered by New York firms for their retail business; greaseless doughnuts rolled in powdered sugar, and a fruit and nut bread with high food value. Delivery of a sufficient order of these inviting foods may be arranged for, as there are seven trucks covering the District with this bake shop's products. The Meanderer will tell you how to arrange for delivery if you will call National 4205, extension 52.

Sweet dried sugar corn from Pennsylvania is a product new to many housewives. It sells in special packages for about 20 cents a package, or may be bought for a little less in bulk form. It is cooked for a long, slow period and when cooked is much like canned corn, and preferred to canned corn by many cooks.

Pop corn balls, made with corn sirup, with a rich, tender finish, sell in a popular bakery on Fourteenth street.

In many markets fresh eggs have taken a sudden drop, the lowest price the Meanderer found being 39 cents in a chain store. These are full-size eggs. Storage eggs sell in the same chain store for 31 cents.

Fresh mushrooms for 33 cents a pound; Florida tomatoes packed in 2-pound boxes for 25 cents; 6 pounds of oranges, meaning at least 20 oranges, for 25 cents; green peas, 3 pounds for 25 cents; 2 pounds of peas 35 cents; new turnips, two bunches 15 cents; large bunches broccoli, 25 cents; new potatoes, 3 pounds, 14 cents; sweet potatoes, 4 pounds for 9 cents; old potatoes, 10 pounds for 15 cents; old cabbage, 2 cents a pound; new cabbage, 4 cents a pound, and two 10-ounce cans Golden Bantam corn for 29 cents are other chain store values the Meanderer would list.

Telephone questions on Market Meanderings to National 4205, extension 52; or address the Market Meanderer, The Washington Post, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Piccard Departs On New York Visit

"Not Particularly Interested" in Promoting New Stratosphere Trip.

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Although he is willing to organize other flights into the stratosphere and would not object to participating in another such venture, Prof. Auguste Piccard said today he was "not particularly interested" in promoting the trip himself.

As he left his brother's home here for a one-day visit in New York City, the Belgian scientist said he would be glad to talk to others who might be interested in the trip, but that "no specific arrangements have been made."

The scientist hopes an ascent in Canada, near the magnetic pole, can be arranged. Returning to Wilmington tonight, Prof. Piccard will remain here until Thursday, when he will go again to New York for a brief stay.

Body of Drowned Navy Officer Found in Harbor

Long Beach, Calif., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The body of Lieut. Comdr. Carl Hupp, 43, of the U. S. S. Raleigh, who drowned last Wednesday when he was washed from the gangplank of the Raleigh in Los Angeles harbor, was found floating in the harbor today.

The officer, drowned, official Navy reports said, while attempting to make a boat fast to the cruiser in a high wind.

Drug Firm Would Dissolve.

The Christiani Drug Co., which for many years has operated a drug store at 903 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to dissolve the company. Through Timothy Hart, attorney, the court was informed that the company has assets of $6,383 and no outstanding debts. The firm is incorporated with $60,000 capital stock.

Brookhart Attends Meeting.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, who has been ill for weeks, yesterday attended the meeting of the Joint Congressional Committee on Veterans' Affairs, of which he is a member, as his first participation in the short session. "I am feeling pretty good," he said, "but the hospital has not yet discharged me."

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

A beach dress in navy shantung wraps the figure over a tiny sun-tan suit of the same material. The attached scarf can be wound around to cover the arms and neck and back if desired. Seen in a New York shop.

THE most discussed style trend this season—or for the coming season, rather, which will officially show its collections the latter part of this month—is the beach pyjama—or lack of it.

The collections of the Parisian Haute Couture, which are shown to an eagerly curious crowd of buyers, private clientele and fashion writers and artists four times a year, are, as I have often told you, rather far in advance of the seasons. Less so than in former days, when the midseason collection, shown in November, was for spring, and the important, big season showing in January and February was for midsummer. Now there are two types of garments in both of the above-mentioned collections—in November one finds spring apparel and winter togs, not just spring things. There are lots of reasons for this, which I will tell you some other day. Sufficient to say that the collections which will be shown the end of this month will comprise both spring and summer wear and that a very important part of summer wear is always devoted to vacation togs.

In vacation togs you will hear a lot about beach and lounging pyjamas being "out," but don't let it scare you. They aren't as new, certainly, as the beach dresses which are so gayly named "sea apron," "apron dress," "beach dress" and a host of other names, all ending in dress or robe—to distinguish them from pyjamas. But the pyjama is not out of style, demode, at all. It has taken a definite place in costuming and, like the long and short of the coiffure, like the sun tan or white skin, the pyjama is a matter of personal choice.

The beach dress is newer. But if pyjamas become you, if you like them and, more important, if you have several, you need not feel at all out of style. Each of the midseason collections showed both beach frocks and pyjamas, and I can safely predict that each of them will show the same for the coming collection, which definitely sets the style for summer.

Sun robe or sea robe, apron, or what have you—you may not find either as comfortable or as becoming to you as pyjamas, especially if you are slim of hips and long of limb. The new beach wear is more feminine than pyjamas, no doubt of it, and far more becoming to the rounded figure, which is more and more the mode.

This beach dress is usually both deeply decollete and enveloping. A tricky this or that allows you just as much and no more sun tan than you wish. It is developed in shantung, cretonne, sponge cloth or linen, is slipped on over the bathing suit after a swim—and after the suit is a little dry. And a lot more to it than this—but I will just have to let you know about that later.

• • • •

Today I have sketched a beach dress for you, which I saw in a New York shop, attributed to Chanel. It is navy shantung, and wraps the figure over a tiny sun-tan suit of the same material. The attached scarf can be wound around no end—to cover the arms and neck and back if desired, or allowed to fall gracefully almost anywhere, to leave them exposed to more sun tan. This is only one of the type of beach dresses, and there will be more to sketch later.

Can you talk intelligently of styles when the talk turns to that ever-fascinating subject after the bridge game? Not unless you can toss off with aplomb the inevitable French words that come rolling into any style conversation! You just have to know this much French, and since it will cost you no more than a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post to find out how to say these things, there is really no excuse for you not being able to now. This is a rather long leaflet, and in it I have put every French word or expression I could think of, together with the detailed explanation of the pronunciation and of the meaning. Better send for it and see!

Au revoir.

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 8:50 a. m., from 11 a. m. to 12:15 p. m. and from 5:40 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:15 a. m to 10:15 a. m. and from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m.

In all probability, "the breaks" will be in your favor on this January 17. In spite of errors of judgment that you will be prone to make, you will have a successful day. This does not mean that you should tempt "Lady Luck" nor that you should give in to a desire to gamble that may come over you. Don't try to put over anything on the wife or sweetheart as the case may be.

The child born on this January 17 will be unusually bright and quick to "catch-on" to things. Ever on the alert it will keep the guessing answering its questions and satisfying its desires to know the whys and the wherefores of all things. These children, more than most children, will look to their elders for guidance through their formative years. Remember always that your actions and words will be followed by these little ones.

If January 17 is your birthday, yours is inclined to be a cramped personality. You are never yourself, you never let yourself go. There is much fear in your make-up. You become easily confused and whenever you find yourself in circumstances out of the ordinary, you know not which way to turn. You do not meet people easily; you are restless and uncomfortable when you find yourself one of a group. Try to master these "fear complexes" and to give fuller play to the more positive side of your nature.

Born on January 17, you have many fine qualities, many fully apparent and operative, others dormant and undeveloped. You are honest to a degree; there is not a trace of deceit in your make-up. You have a mind that retains detail; all kinds of valuable information are always at your finger tips. You are devoted to your few friends and to your family; nothing is too much trouble to undertake for them. In business you are clever rather than shrewd; you can not drive a hard bargain. You will make your share of money.

Successful people born on January 17:

Ossian B. Hart, jurist and governor.

Henry M. Baird, author and educator.

Mary G. Barbosa, colored missionary.

John A. Mitchell, editor and author.

Arthur B. Frost, artist and illustrator.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

HOW'S YOUR LIVER?

THE liver is the largest organ in the body, and one of the most important when the matter is one of health and comfort. Although there is nothing of dramatic immediacy that characterizes interference with breathing or heartbeat, when the liver goes on a strike somehow the machinery of life goes wrong.

For centuries it has been a greatly discussed organ, but because the talk was very loose it did not get us far. And yet we knew that the liver must have very important work to do else there would not be so much of it. Any one who has seen the liver of an old man alongside that of a young child could not escape the conclusion that life takes toll from the liver.

In recent years methods of testing the liver function have been discovered. Some of them are in fairly general use. A well taken X-ray picture shows the outline of the liver and gall bladder. Not infrequently gallstones can be seen in it, but we can not conclude that none are present because no shadows are seen. People under suspicion of having them are apt to be fat, with thick abdominal walls which obscure the picture, and not all gallstones are opaque to rays.

A dozen years ago the Graham and other tests were perfected. These show how well the gall bladder empties, and often by using these tests we can be certain that gallstones are present or absent. But these are tests for gall bladder function.

More important are the half dozen tests for liver function. Most of these are well known to physicians. Almost any physician has had experience in using one or more of them. Probably the best of them in the present state of the art is known as the icteric index. Another one, with which many physicians have had experience, is the Van den Bergh test. This is more difficult to carry out and, for that and other reasons, is generally ranked below the icteric index test. Others are: Bromsulphalein test, galastose test, urobilinogen test and the Portis test.

It is probable that the common, everyday use of liver tests may lead to very considerable changes in our diet. It is not probable that we will use as much mustard, horseradish, pepper, pepper sauce and other condiments when we know more about the liver. The writer looks for important information as to the effects of whisky and beer drinking. Temperance should be promoted by what the liver will tell us. We may eat less heavily with advantage to longevity and good health. Possibly we will learn how to prevent apoplexy.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

MORE and more importance is being attached to the hands as important features in the pictorial scheme. Which is as it should be. Because soft, smooth, white hands are a joy to the eye. They speak silently but eloquently of their owner's careful grooming.

The lame excuse, "housework," is no longer offered. Mrs. B. H. very aptly puts it, "Kids, cooking and caring for the house are hard on the hands, but I've managed to keep mine looking respectable (the kids, the house and the hands—the last by dabbing in creams and oils just as you advised)."

Hand Care Comes First.

To my mind, hand care should come first, before high luster polishes. If the nails are kept regularly manicured and polished after the latest fashion edicts, they will only exaggerate redness, discolorations or roughness. On the other hand, if the skin surrounding the nails is smooth and the hand kept white and lovely, even if the nails are faintly tinted the picture is pleasantly complete.

Then the Polish.

The jeweled polishes look ravishingly chic on some and absolutely "too-too much" on others. The unusually smart, exotic individual can indeed wear emerald nails with her emerald jewels and feel confident that many eyes will admire the ensemble.

Attracts Attention.

When the nails are "jeweled" ruby, emerald, jade, onyx, coral, &c., these unnatural shades naturally attract a great deal of attention. Which means that the nails must be perfectly shaped, the cuticle kept flawlessly smooth, the hand itself always soft, silky, white. It means still more. These polishes emphasize stubby or too lean fingertips, which means that the digits must be tapered "just right." For the very special occasion, when even Miss Mediocre feels "soigne" or devilish, it is quite all right to try the jeweled polishes. Many of the better beauty salons are offering a hot oil manicure, which means merely that the fingertips are soaked in oil instead of sudsy water to soften the cuticle. This is especially excellent during the winter months to avoid dryness, breaking of nail as well as cuticle. The better beauty shops also finish the manicure with a hand massage which acts as softener and whitener.

If you can not afford such a manicure, do not despair. You can give yourself this hand care at home. My bulletins on hand beauty will tell you how—step by step.
